Problem

A New England manufacturer produces an article suited to the needs or desires of New Englanders. It must be sold through New England jobbers or retailers. How can he best know them and reach them?

Answer

Look in our New Business Telephone Directory. It lists over 155,000 Business subscribers served by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. These subscribers are arranged by states and classified under appropriate business or professional headings.

You can call 20, 50, or 100 of them in a day. Give your local operator the telephone number as listed. Hold the receiver at your ear while connection is made and then—

Fight Over Ruling on Hospital

Through the intervention of Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland, who ruled the trustees of Boston City Hospital have no right to produce records except by court order, the City Council investigation of conditions at that institution came to an abrupt halt today.

Following a heated controversy, the committee went into executive session and voted to defer further hearings until after election, when they will be resumed at the hospital with no definite date fixed.

Despite the ruling of the corporation counsel, who said the law forbade the production of records without

90 FLEE FLAMES AFTER BLAST IN SOMERVILLE PLANT; 2 GIRLS RESCUED

Twenty girls and 70 men led fire and ammonia fumes today following an explosion in the plant of the New England Creamery Products Co., 43 Somerville ave., Somerville.

Two of the girl employes escaping the burning plant found themselves on the roof of a two-story building adjoining, with no way to reach the ground, and with black smoke and choking ammonia fumes swirling around their heads.

Cries of the girls attracted firemen below and ladders were placed to the roof. The girls, Laura Gilmette and Isa White, were assisted to the exit.

The alarms were sounded for the 6, bringing apparatus from Camden and Medford to aid the Somerville firefighters.

Before it was extinguished the fire, fed by oil from an oil heater in the basement, had roared up through all three floors of the brick building and had eaten through the roof.

At the height of the fire Ladderman John Quinn of the Somerville department found himself hard pressed on the third floor and made

PASSES EUROPEAN COAST AT NANTES

Paris, Oct. 31 (AP)—The homeward-bound dirigible Graf Zeppelin reached the French coast from Lakehurst, N. J., late today, flying over Nantes at 6:43 p. m. (1:43 p. m., Eastern standard time).

At that time the ship had been in the air 59 hours and 49 minutes. She still had about 900 miles to go to Friedrichshafen, her home port, where she is expected at the earliest at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning, to land at daybreak.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 31 (INS)—The homeward bound Graf Zeppelin, bearing passengers, mails and cargo from Lakehurst, N. J., to this airport, passed over European mainland near the mouth of the Gironde river, in France, this afternoon.

Word was received here that the great airship was over the mouth of the Gironde at 3:30 p. m., French time, or 11:30 eastern standard time.

GIRL DIES AFTER AUTO RIDE; QUIZ MILLIONAIRE

Stamford, Ct., Oct. 31 (INS)—Victim of a brutal attack on the lonely Magee road in Shippan Point after she had accepted a lift from a passing motorist, Olga Bayes, 20, stenographer, died early today in Stamford Hospital.

The girl, repulsing the advances of the lone driver, was beaten by him and then thrown from the car as it crossed the bridge over a creek. In the fall she struck a jagged rock and her skull was fractured.

Two hours before she succumbed to her injuries, a man of striking appearance, about 30, a university graduate, and reputedly New York millionaire, was taken into custody.

The suspect's identity was not disclosed. He was brought here from New York by Stamford detectives in charge of Chief of Police John Brennan.

The girl told police she was in a

HOOVER ON TRAIN WEST TO DIRECT LAST MOVES

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP)—Another oddity will take its place in this campaign of oddities late this week when the Republican high command directs the party's vast field forces from general headquarters on a swiftly moving special train carrying Herbert Hoover to his California home.

Since the day of his nomination, the Republican candidate has had personal charge of the conduct of his fight for the presidency, and so it will be until the last shot has been fired and the army of voters begins to march upon the polling places.

SMITH READY FOR HIS NEW JERSEY INVASION

New York, Oct. 31—Governor Smith will carry his fight for the presidency outside the borders of his home state for the last time tonight when he motors into New Jersey for a speech at Newark, a city only recently evacuated by his Republican opponent.

Returning to his headquarters here immediately after the address, the Democratic presidential nominee will spend tomorrow in preparation for his twin effort to swing New York into line with speeches in Brooklyn and this city Friday and Saturday.

Fifty-nine votes in the electoral college are at stake in New Jersey and its neighbor State of New York, and Governor Smith believes his chances are good for bagging all of them, despite the fact that only once in the last eight quadrennial elections have they been found in the Democratic column. This was in the triangonared race of 1912, when Wilson carried both states.

President Coolidge had a plurality of more than 875,000 four years ago.

ZEPP SETS DIRIGIBLE RECORD ACROSS ATLANTIC

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Appearance of the Graf Zeppelin over the French coast at 1:43 p. m. marked the fastest dirigible voyage on record across the Atlantic. The best previous time had been made on the return trip of the British dirigible R34, which flew from Roosevelt Field to Clifden, Ireland, in July, 1919, in 64 hours and 13 minutes. The Graf Zeppelin's time from Lakehurst to Nantes was 59 hours and 49 minutes.

'SHOWBOAT' TUNES LIVEN UP ZEPP, WRITES INGRAM

Aboard Graf Zeppelin, Oct. 31—We will get our first glimpse of land—Ireland—today. We are now 400 miles southwest of Fastnet Light, Ireland, heading toward Cherbourg, whence we will steer direct for Friedrichshafen.

Our position at this time is 43 north longitude 20 west latitude. We are making 75 knots (84 miles) an hour. Radio conditions are bad.

The air is clear and the sea is calm and we can see for miles in any direction. I just paused to watch an unidentified tramp steamer slip by beneath us.

John C. Ingram

Joseph D. Jessel, New York financier, who was injured in an automobile accident at Lakehurst Sunday night shortly before we took off, is able to be up today. He says he is enjoying the trip. He was determined not to stay home because of the accident, although he has been confined to his stateroom until today.

FAR OUT AT SEA

Somebody produced a phonograph and the welcome melodies from Ziegfeld's "Showboat" which the crew saw while in New York are proving the most popular.

As I write this, we are humming our way along through the skies to the tune of a perfect drone from our engines.

We are traveling considerably farther north than the passenger list had expected. After riding the storm over the gulf and across Newfoundland, we are far out to sea this morning, gazing down on a vista of icebergs and drifting floes. And the weather, I might say, is cold.

Just how cold it is I don't know, but any one of this good ship's complement will tell you that it is cold enough in all conscience. Breakfast was a welcome sight.

MARVELOUS TRIP

The warming quality of food in the early morning after a frigid night aboard a sky-bird, is one of the most grateful sensations a fellow can experience.

The pre-breakfast gathering in the saloon was a gathering of hand-rubbing, bundled-up passengers to whom the very thought of warming drinks was like a dream of paradise. Now, if a fellow could only smoke a cigarette—

But it is a marvelous trip and an amazing experience. I do not imagine there is a soul among the passengers who did not suffer all the feeling of pre-adventure nervousness as we sailed from Lakehurst, but it has been amply demonstrated to us during the last 30 hours that we are riding aloft in a particularly airworthy craft in which we travel in safety and comfort.

Storms beset our course through the evening and early night as we were crossing Newfoundland, but throughout the gale our good ship rode like an eagle, almost ignoring its archenemy, the storm king. Just a faint sense of gentle swaying and a slight, easy pitch; that was all there was to remind us in the motion of the Graf that we were riding through a northern gale.

RODE STORMS

It was smoother than riding a Pullman car—particularly in a Pullman in which your berth is over the wheels. Nobody was seasick. Everyone aboard was in the best of spirits. There is an absolute absence of concern for personal safety amongst those on board. The steady quality of our Zep and the machine-like precision with which its crew goes about its tasks robs one of any vestige of everything but confidence. Truly a great experience.

The stormy weather and the static condition of the ether considerably hampered the ship's radio plant and outgoing messages had to be curtailed while we were crossing the Newfoundland storm zone. Now, however, the storms are abating and there is a promise of fair weather and tail winds ahead to speed us on our way to land. In the storm center the Graf had to fight every inch of the way against the elements, but Commander Eckener tells me this morning that we may look for good weather and that we shall outrun the storms during the day.

STOWAWAY HAPPY

Our dishwashing stowaway is still the happiest boy in the clouds. He goes about his job of washing dishes in the ship's galley without a care in the world and with a whistle on his lips.

Our course has veered southward slightly and we are riding along at an average of 40 knots, heading southward to regain some of the mileage that we lost when the storms drove our craft toward Greenland on Monday night.

Just a few minutes ago I was talking over the immediate future with Dr. Eckener, and I gather from him that we shall swing across the southern tip of Ireland, thence over the south of England and so to France and diagonally across Germany to Friedrichshafen. The commander says he will not circle over Berlin as he did over New York at the termination of his westbound flight.

ZEPP FLIES OVER FRANCE ON HER WAY TO GERMANY

She was travelling in a northeasterly direction with the evident intention of crossing France in a straight line to her home port.

The Gironde river flows into the Bay of Biscay, 60 miles northwest of Bordeaux.

At 1:54 p. m. the ship had been in the air 60 hours with good chances of making the voyage in 72 hours.

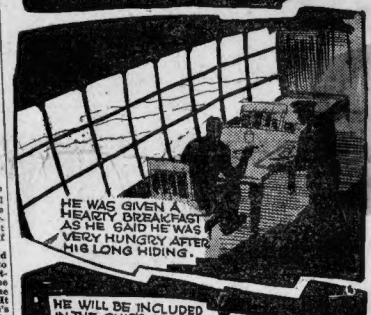
Weather conditions were boisterous early in the day, but abated as the afternoon wore on.

Thousands of visitors were gathered here today from all over Germany to welcome the mighty airliner on the return from her trail-blazing journey to the western world.

Hundreds of soldiers and police are patrolling the field about the hangar to handle the crowds.

All Friedrichshafen (where the Graf was built) is filled with flags and garlands of flowers. The home of Commodore Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, was swamped with congratulatory messages and filled with flowers.

The Zeppelin's hangar is profusely decorated.



Great Welcome and Jobs Planned for Boy Stowaway

One of the most picturesque figures on the gantrese is the 19-year-old stowaway from St. Louis—Clarence Terhune. Many gifts have arrived here for him.

A Heidelberg hotel sent a special invitation to Terhune to visit that famous old university city at the expense of the municipality. The manager of the Hagenback animal circus, of Hamburg, offered to make a lion tamer out of the young American adventurer. A department store offered him a place on its staff on his own terms.

Throughout the afternoon and evening cablegrams continued to pile up in the Friedrichshafen post-office offering Terhune immense sums to appear in vaudeville and the movies in the United States. It was evident that the young man's nerve in stowing away on the airship had made him a fortune.

The Zeppelin works received the following radiogram from Dr. Eckener, commander of the airship:

"The Graf Zeppelin at 6 p. m. German time (10 a. m. Eastern Standard Time) is 100 miles southwest of Brest."

Upon the basis of this report Herr Duerr, manager of the works announced the airship would probably land the first time Thursday morning. Later he ordered the ground crew of 200 men to disperse but to reassemble at 5:30 a. m. tomorrow. He said if they were required earlier a gun shot would be fired.

"That is good news; I am sure they will make it tonight," exclaimed Frau Lehmann, wife of the third officer in command of the Zeppelin, when she learned the air liner was near the French coast.

"It is too bad that the men upon the ship cannot go to their homes as soon as the Graf lands, but the celebration of the 'beer evening' comes first. The families of the officers and men upon the liner have waited patiently for them to make this historic journey to a faraway land and home again."

Director Colman of the Zeppelin works said he was afraid the welcome parade would have to be called off because tomorrow is a religious holiday in Germany.

The ship's hangar has been decorated with flags and garlands. Crowds have poured into Friedrichshafen to welcome the air liner.

Bay of Biscay at 6:21 a. m. Eastern standard time.

London, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Graf Zeppelin was 140 miles off Bordeaux, over the Bay of Biscay, at 10:50 a. m. eastern standard time, the air ministry announced.

Portishead, Eng., Oct. 31 (AP)—A radio from the British steamer Narkunda, received at 9:57 a. m eastern standard time, said the Zeppelin was in sight, flying low to the eastward. The Narkunda's position was about 175 miles from the French coast.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—A message received from Brest shortly before noon today by the French Cable Company gave the position of the Graf Zeppelin as latitude 46:56 north and longitude 3:31 west, about 150 miles southwest of Brest.

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Graf Zeppelin reported her position at 12:36 p. m. Eastern standard time as latitude 47.20 north and longitude 4 west, or about 75 miles south of Brest and about the same distance west of Nantes.

Bordeaux, France, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Bousoat wireless station reported the Graf Zeppelin 40 miles west of the Gironde estuary at 10:30, Eastern standard time.

Le Bourget, France, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Zeppelin informed the Le Bourget flying field she expected to strike the French coast near Nantes about 2 p. m., Eastern standard time.

FIND VICTIM OF OWN TORTURE IN STATION

Lake Bluff, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP)—Self-torture by fire to prove her faith in a "spirit love" was advanced today to explain the strange case of Miss Elfriede Knaak, 30-year-old Sunday school teacher and book agent.

It was a weird, uncanny explanation, full of holes and wide open to practical-minded police skepticism, but it came from the lips of Miss Knaak herself, lying near death from burns mysteriously inflicted in the basement of the Lake Bluff police station Monday night.

Physicians were unconvinced.

BURNS SELF FOR "FAITH."

"To believe her story," said Dr. A. J. Risinger, attending her, "you would have to believe these facts:

"That she first placed one foot, then the other, in the furnace and kept them there for some little time; that she thrust head and arms and held them there under what certainly must have been terrific pain. The firebox is only 12¾ by 8¾.

"It does not seem possible that a person even in a trance could do that. Muscular reaction alone would

PLAN REMOVAL NEXT COMMON FOR PARKING

Embattled residents of Beacon Hill filled the office of the street commissioners in City Hall Annex today and protested vigorously the projected removal of the sidewalk on the Common side of Beacon st. from just below the State House to Charles st.

The loss, conceived for the purpose of providing additional parking space, was denounced as approaching the sacrilegious, the protestants declaring there is too much traffic on the street at the present time.

ONE IN FAVOR

They included numerous members of the Beacon Hill Associates, headed by William W. Coolidge, Miss Marion C. Nichols and Bernard J. Rothwell, as well as Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, Mary H. Buckingham, Adams K. Adams, Frances G. Curtis, president of the Women's City Club, and others.

The only resident of the district who expressed himself in favor of the project was Alexander Macomber of 45 Beacon st., who said the removal of the sidewalk would help clean up traffic congestion and

EDNA HOPPER'S EXERCISES FOR HEALTH-BEAUTY

Edna Wallace Hopper, nicknamed the "eternal flapper" because of her continuing youthfulness, reveals many of her secrets of lasting charm in a series of articles of which the following is the second. She is in Boston this week at the Keith-Albee.

By EDNA WALLACE HOPPER

The first thing to be remembered when exercising is—don't move gingerly, or feel that you are a martyr to the care of your body. Let me caution you against tenseness. Unless you relax, exercising will produce over-developed muscles.

FIRST—stand erect, feet together, elbows extended horizontally, hands on chest. Head is held erect, chin in.

SECOND—Rise on toes, feet together, stretch arms overhead. Then bend body at the trunk and touch the floor with the palms of the hands. This brings into play most of the muscles that tend, if properly developed, to symmetrical figures. Try this five minutes; increase with practice.

THIRD—Modify this exercise by bringing arms on a level with the shoulders, five times.

FOURTH—With feet about half a foot apart, keep knees straight and body erect. Bring the arms from the sides up as high as possible, five times.

FIFTH—Without changing position—arms extended straight from the shoulder, swing each arm in a circular motion. Alternate the right and left, five times with each.

SIXTH—(Same position) hold arms outstretched to sides. Twist body at waist from side to side, five times. This exercises most muscles of the body.

SEVENTH—Just to top off this schedule, repeat Exercise No. 3 five times. There—but that's enough for today. Will tell you more tomorrow.

The "eternal flapper" will disclose more about her methods of remaining young in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

MAN JAILED BY ERROR HOLDS NO 'MALICE'

"With malice toward none . . ."

Thus does Benjamin C. Collins of Lowell, released from Charlestown State Prison as innocent of handbag stealing, survey the train of events by which five women accusers, police and prosecuting attorneys sent him to a felon's cell through wrong identification.

Apprised of the miscarriage of justice, Dist. Atty. Bushnell produced Collins in East Cambridge Court on a writ of habeas corpus, and recommended the discharge which Collins now enjoys.

His freedom after serving five days within the grim walls of the prison was won by the arrest of his "double," who faces trial for the offences originally laid to Collins.

To Mrs. Mabel C. Collins, his mother, the arrival of the pardoned son at their Hadley st. home in Lowell was the answer to her constant prayer that the "truth would come out."

"It was terrible to sit in the dock," Collins declared today, "and be helpless to protest against the accusations flung at me by the women witnesses.

"It was doubly dreadful to shuffle through the gates of Charlestown, spend the first night in solitary confinement and with the break of morning light realize I was doomed to spend from 2½ to 3½ years there for a crime I never committed.

"I want to thank District Attorney Bushnell for his fairness in reopening my case. He's one white man."

Two ambitions were uppermost in the mind of Collins today as he overcame the fright of the fate which might have been his.

One is a desire to secure immediate work and the other is curiosity to get a glimpse of George Hall, who closely resembles him in appearance and who is now charged with the handbag snatching crimes.

Until he gets employment, Collins will remain in Lowell with his mother and sister, Mrs. Mabel Leighton, at the Hadley st. address.

LOSES HAIR AS COMBS MELT; GETS $8000

An award of $8000 was given Mrs. Hattie Farley, 7A, of Erving by a jury in Suffolk Superior Court today because she lost all her hair when eight combs melted on her head from electric heat while she was getting a wave.

The verdict was against the Standard Pyroxeloid Corporation of Leominster, comb manufacturers, and the Edward Tower Co., Inc., of Boston, wholesale dealers, whom Mrs. Farley sued for $50,000.

A hairdresser, Marie De Erick of Huntington ave., in whose shop Mrs. Farley was getting the wave, was not held liable, although the combs had included her in the suit.

Expert testimony was given to the effect that if a temperature of 160 degrees was played on the combs, they would themselves rise to a temperature of 200. Mrs. Farley was badly burned about the scalp, and in addition to the loss of her hair has sores which doctors said might never heal. She was in a hospital for two months.

The combs in question were described in testimony as being made of guncotton and camphor, the latter ingredient being put in to allow them to be bent to fit the head for the ladder, only to find it had been removed.

Another ladder was shot up and he crawled out of the flame area.

Mean while on the first floor men employes of the plant were making desperate efforts to save books and records of the company from the office.

The fire followed a blast in the basement, where, according to John H. Blodgett, general manager of the company, an ammonia valve was leaking.

In shutting off the ammonia source, Edwin Noble, an employee, suffered a burned face. He could not reach the oil tank to shut off the fuel to the basement heater, and the oil continued to feed the flames that started after the explosion.

Firemen were forced to use gas masks in battling the blaze throughout.

Traffic through Somerville ave., the main thoroughfare between Cambridge and Somerville, was blocked for more than two hours.

Manager Blodgett declared the damage would run as high as $125,000.

MOTHER CLAIMS TAKING BABY 'NO THEFT'

Charged with assault and battery on Mrs. [illegible], 23, of Lowell rd., Brighton, as a result of the "stealing" of her own baby, Mrs. Evangeline Gould, pretty coat model of Murdock st., Cambridge, was arraigned in Brighton toda[illegible].

Arraigned with her on the same charge was her sister, Mrs. Lo[illegible] Anita, night club dancer and widely known fancy diver and swimmer who participated in the alleged baby-snatching episode. Both pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued to next Wednesday.

All three principals were in court, and after the proceedings Mrs. Stearns returned to Miss Anita a purse which she had lost in the Brighton rd. house during the scuffle.

According to allegations, the baby, a year-old girl, was placed in the care of Mrs. Stearns by the father, Horace Gould of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, who was given a suspended sentence for sounding false fire alarms in Belmont.

Mrs. Gould said she determined to have her child back, and accompanied by her sister went to the home of Mrs. Stearns. The young women claimed Mrs. Stearns refused to give up the baby, so they took it by force, with the result that they were arrested for assault and battery.

FINDS NEW LIFE IN RELIGION IS NEEDED

A plea for the renewal of those moral virtues which made New England the backbone of the greatest nation on earth was made today by Rev. Maurice Levy before a capacity audience in the Baptist Church, Brookline, in opening the session of the Massachusetts Baptist convention.

"There is still morality, decency and self respect in the world," Dr. Levy of Pittsfield said in delivering his address as president of that body, "but it is largely the result of the momentum of the past code that made our nation a leader among all nations. We need new vitality in our spiritual outlook."

Twenty-one new pastors of Baptist churches were welcomed into the state amid enthusiastic cheers, one came from Florida.

Miss Colburn Always a Civic Booster

"It is all very well to earn a living, but one is not worth much in this every-day life unless she contributes something to civic up-build," says Miss Caro Fiske Colburn, direct descendant of John Alden, and named for the daughter of General Fiske, who once ran as a prohibition president.

Miss Colburn

I am firmly convinced that before Caro Colburn's advent into the world "old man stork" had cajoled her parents into believing he was bringing them a boy. She has elected to live a man's life, has gone up into the high places and fought as many men never would, for reduction of street car fares, showing figures of other cities where the five cent fare prevailed and money was made. We fastidious ones may thank her for certain sanitary laws being put through prohibiting expectorating on sidewalks and other places.

One of the traditions of her distinguished southern family was that ladies must never work, so she compromised and became a journalist. I dare say she worked harder at that profession than any other she might have chosen. A number of years ago she gave this up in favor of being a real estate broker, and though the attitude of the family is still a trifle undecided because she is their only woman worker, they are obliged to admit that she has been wonderfully successful.

For six years Miss Colburn has been legislative chairman on the Massachusetts State Federation, and chairman of the community welfare committee. Among other interests, she belongs to the Presidents' Club, City Federation, and Professional Women's Club, where she has helped in the past to put on shows and appear for benefits.

Just at present Miss Colburn is taking an active part in getting the pre-election parade whipped into shape. Friday night at 6:30 the party whose motto is—"Vote as you will, but vote"—is going to be represented by women from all over the city and state, bearing torchlights and banners.

IN FIRST PARADE

Other details have not as yet been given out by their press chairmen. Eight years ago, after woman had won the vote, Miss Colburn was the first to organize a political parade for women. She had Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Fuller out carrying the state banner and flag.

WOMAN BURNED IN 'SPIRIT LOVE'

cause her to jump back from the flames."

The name of Charles W. Hitchcock, 45 years old, married and the father of four children, was brought into the case by Miss Knaak, who during the night, frequently cried out: "Hitch, oh, Hitch, why don't you come to me?"

"Who did this?" said the State's attorney, bending over the girl's cot.

"I did it myself, for faith, for purity," was the response. At intervals the officers obtained her story. She had known Hitchcock four years, she said, having studied elocution and salesmanship in classes he conducts here.

"A few months ago I got to know him spiritually," she was quoted as saying. "He was no materal love affair. Advanced psychology made me understand him. For weeks I have been hearing his voice saying, 'Have faith; have faith.'

HEARD "VOICE CALLING."

"I had an appointment with him Monday night. He did not keep it. When he did not appear I again heard his voice, urging me to have faith.

"To prove my faith I thought of the fire. I removed my clothes and burned them. I burned myself. I survived. I proved my faith, and I'll live. Be sure of this, I knew I would survive."

Hitchcock is unable to clear up the girl's story.

"Poor girl, if she had a crush on me I certainly didn't know it," he said.

Hitchcock conducts his salesmanship classes in the morning hours and works as a night policeman from 1 p. m. to 1 a. m. One theory is that Miss Knaak went too the police station to await Hitchcock's arrival, entered with a key of her own and was attacked by some vagrant in the place.

MANY DEAD IN ATTACK BY MEXICAN REBELS

Several hundred well armed rebels attacked the town and fighting raged for nine hours before federal reinforcements from Guadalajara forced the rebels to retire. The outskirts of the town were strewn with dead. It was the heaviest assault since the religious uprising started.

Mexico City, Oct. 31 (INS)—Many persons were killed in a violent attack by Liberator (religious) rebels at Atotzitlco El Alto, Jalisco, said a dispatch from Guadalajara today.

SAYS HOSPITAL INQUIRY IS ILLEGAL

out court order the committee declared they will demand what information they need when the hearings are resumed.

UPROAR OVER RULING.

The ruling of Deland was announced just as the special committee convened to take up the case of Charles Bowden, Jr., of Dorchester, whose body is alleged to have laid in the hospital five days while his mother was told the child was "doing nicely."

It precipitated an uproar among the members of the committee some of whom defied the corporation counsel to interfere with their actions, while others questioned the accuracy of his ruling.

In making the announcement, Chairman John I. Fitzgerald of the committee said it would leave the trustees without defense, and for that reason suggested an adjournment to be followed by a conference.

Councilman Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., complainant in the Bowden case, and Councilman John F. Dowd, were particularly outspoken in their denunciation of Corporation Counsel Deland for what they characterized as unwarranted interference in City Council affairs.

SAYS BOARD IS HELPLESS.

They attempted to question Alexander Whiteside, spokesman for the trustees, but he refused to be cross-examined, stating only that his board had been "hamstrung" by the ruling and was helpless.

At this point Corporation Counsel Deland was sent for, and, appearing at once, declared the City Council's investigation was expressly prohibited by law, adding that the mayor only has such a right.

"If your conscience doesn't permit you from going on with this investigation then the law should," he declared.

Trustee Whiteside then volunteered the statement that the trustees feel these investigations are demoralizing.

"I wish to say that if I were the sole member of this board," he said, "I would tell you that I would not go on with these hearings because they are detrimental to the hospital, the patients, to their relatives and to the public. We are trying to do everything possible to improve conditions at the hospital and welcome recommendations, but we do not feel that this is the proper way to remedy conditions."

TALKS OF RESIGNATIONS

This brought a rejoinder from Councilman Wilson that if he had the power he would demand the resignation of any trustees who would request that the probe be stopped.

Councilman Michael Ward was then permitted to make a statement in which he said the hearing was not only illegal but was giving a false impression of the hospital to the public. He suggested the appointment of a probing committee comprising representatives of the public and the press.

Asked by Councilman Wilson if he would leave the City Council committee cease functioning, Councilman Ward replied:

"This is not the method that should be pursued."

The hearing was adjourned on motion of Councilman Wilson and the committee went into executive session.

CAN'T PRODUCE RECORDS

At the opening of the session, City Councilor John I. Fitzgerald, chairman of the hospital investigating committee, announced the committee was handicapped by a new development.

"The committee has been informed by the corporation counsel that the trustees of Boston City Hospital will not be allowed to produce the records of that institution unless by order of the court, and then only as to a specific case," he said.

"This would mean that if the investigation is to continue, the trustees will have to sit and listen to the evidence without the power of offering any defense.

"If I think, therefore, that the only fair thing to do is to adjourn so that the committee may confer with the trustees."

BOMBSHELL TO WILSON

City Councilor Robert Gardiner Wilson, complainant in the Bowden case, which was to be heard today, said: "This is a bombshell to me. I personally desire to have a full and a fair hearing and to co-operate with the hospital in every possible way. I don't think the corporation counsel has any right to come in here and tell this committee how it can conduct its investigation which was started by the full City Council.

"The City Council has the right to make appropriations and if, as we have been told, the nursing force is undermanned, we have a right to know it and to get at the facts in the whole situation," Wilson declared.

RESENTS INTERFERENCE.

City Councilor John F. Dowd resented the interference. He said:

"I defy the corporation counsel or the mayor of Boston to interfere with the progress of this inquiry.

"This is the first time in my experience as a member of this council in three years that the corporation counsel has come in here and tried to tell the council what to do," he said.

Chairman Fitzgerald asked Alexander Whiteside, one of the hospital trustees who acted as spokesman for the board at today's executive session, if he cared to make a statement.

"We have an opinion from the corporation counsel," said Trustee Whiteside, "stating that the City Council has the right to examine records of its patients. We have no desire to cover up anything. If the law says we cannot produce the records we cannot do so, and that is all there is to it."

CALLS IT PETTY POLITICS.

Councilor Wilson: "I've got to be shown the Supreme Court decision that says the City Council can be prevented from seeing the records of the City Hospital, and I don't believe there is any such decision.

Trustee Whiteside: "All we ask is a continuance for 24 hours."

Councilor Edmund Gallagher: "It seems to me all this talk is unnecessary. It looks like petty politics. Mr. Chairman, I think it was your duty not to call a meeting of this committee this morning when the trustees of the hospital were not summoned to go on."

Chairman Fitzgerald: "I didn't do this because this is a public hearing and I thought whatever was said should be made in public."

Councilor Dowd: "Mr. Whiteside do I understand you are going to compel the City Council to go to the courts to get the records of Boston City Hospital?"

"WE ARE HAM-STRUNG."

Trustee Whiteside — No. Mr. Councilor, we are ham-strung. We cannot produce records.

Councilor Wilson—Who produced the decision?

Trustee Whiteside—I am not here to be cross-examined. We cannot go on and produce records without the consent of the patients themselves. We have no right, in justice to the patients, to produce and disclose any such records.

Councilor Dowd—Suppose the mayor should request these records would you produce them?

Trustee Whiteside—I don't think the mayor has any authority to call for them. I don't think anyone but the court has the right.

CALLS INQUIRY ILLEGAL

Corporation Counsel Deland said: "We rendered that opinion and it says the City Council has no right to investigate the City Hospital. I go further and say it is expressly prohibited by law. It is an administrative and executive duty."

Chairman Fitzgerald—Who has the right to investigate?

Mr. Deland—The mayor. Your committee has no authority in this matter and the law says you have no right to investigate. If your conscience doesn't prevent you from going on with this investigation then the law should.

HURTING THE HOSPITAL

Trustee Whiteside—The hospital trustees feel these inquiries are demoralizing to the hospital and its working force. It keeps the doctors and nurses away from their duties. I wish to say if I were the sole member of this board I would tell you I would not go on with these hearings because they are detrimental to the hospital, the patients, to their relatives and to the public. We are trying to do everything possible to improve conditions at the hospital and welcome recommendations, but we do not feel that this is the proper way to remedy conditions.

"This would mean that if the investigation is to continue, the trustees will have to sit and listen to the evidence without the power of offering any defense.

If I think, therefore, that the only fair thing to do is to adjourn so that the committee may confer with the trustees."

BOMBSHELL TO WILSON

City Councilor Robert Gardiner Wilson, complainant in the Bowden case, which was to be heard today, said: "This is a bombshell to me. I personally desire to have a full and a fair hearing and to co-operate with the hospital in every possible way. I don't think the corporation counsel has any right to come in here and tell this committee how it can conduct its investigation which was started by the full City Council.

"The City Council has the right to make appropriations and if, as we have been told, the nursing force is undermanned, we have a right to know it and to get at the facts in the whole situation," Wilson declared.

RESENTS INTERFERENCE.

City Councilor John F. Dowd resented the interference. He said:

"I defy the corporation counsel or the mayor of Boston to interfere with the progress of this inquiry.

"This is the first time in my experience as a member of this council in three years that the corporation counsel has come in here and tried to tell the council what to do," he said.

Chairman Fitzgerald asked Alexander Whiteside, one of the hospital trustees who acted as spokesman for the board at today's executive session, if he cared to make a statement.

"We have an opinion from the corporation counsel," said Trustee Whiteside, "stating that the City Council has the right to examine records of its patients. We have no desire to cover up anything. If the law says we cannot produce the records we cannot do so, and that is all there is to it."

CALLS IT PETTY POLITICS.

Councilor Wilson: "I've got to be shown the Supreme Court decision that says the City Council can be prevented from seeing the records of the City Hospital, and I don't believe there is any such decision.

Trustee Whiteside: "All we ask is a continuance for 24 hours."

Councilor Edmund Gallagher: "It seems to me all this talk is unnecessary. It looks like petty politics. Mr. Chairman, I think it was your duty not to call a meeting of this committee this morning when the trustees of the hospital were not summoned to go on."

Chairman Fitzgerald: "I didn't do this because this is a public hearing and I thought whatever was said should be made in public."

Councilor Dowd: "Mr. Whiteside do I understand you are going to compel the City Council to go to the courts to get the records of Boston City Hospital?"

"WE ARE HAM-STRUNG."

Trustee Whiteside — No. Mr. Councilor, we are ham-strung. We cannot produce records.

Councilor Wilson—Who produced the decision?

Trustee Whiteside—I am not here to be cross-examined. We cannot go on and produce records without the consent of the patients themselves. We have no right, in justice to the patients, to produce and disclose any such records.

Councilor Dowd—Suppose the mayor should request these records would you produce them?

Trustee Whiteside—I don't think the mayor has any authority to call for them. I don't think anyone but the court has the right.

CALLS INQUIRY ILLEGAL

Corporation Counsel Deland said: "We rendered that opinion and it says the City Council has no right to investigate the City Hospital. I go further and say it is expressly prohibited by law. It is an administrative and executive duty."

Chairman Fitzgerald—Who has the right to investigate?

Mr. Deland—The mayor. Your committee has no authority in this matter and the law says you have no right to investigate. If your conscience doesn't prevent you from going on with this investigation then the law should.

HURTING THE HOSPITAL

Trustee Whiteside—The hospital trustees feel these inquiries are demoralizing to the hospital and its working force. It keeps the doctors and nurses away from their duties. I wish to say if I were the sole member of this board I would tell you I would not go on with these hearings because they are detrimental to the hospital, the patients, to their relatives and to the public. We are trying to do everything possible to improve conditions at the hospital and welcome recommendations, but we do not feel that this is the proper way to remedy conditions."

Councilor Dowd—The Boston City Hospital cost the city millions of dollars to maintain. Therefore I, if I had the power, would ask for the resignation of any trustee who would request that this investigation be stopped.

READY TO RESIGN

Trustee Whiteside—Asking for my resignation wouldn't hurt my feelings one bit.

Councilor Gallagher—This situation is not doing any credit to the committee nor is it helping the situation in any way. The opinion of the corporation counsel was not called to our attention in a businesslike way. I fear the effect will be that the patients and public will say they are trying to cover up. I personally do not think that they are trying to conceal anything. The trustees are all big men.

Councilor Ward said: "Last Monday I contended this hearing was not legal and I repeat it today. It hurts the hospital."

Councilor Dowd—Would you as a member of the City Council vote to discontinue this investigation?

Councilor Ward—I don't have to tell you or anyone else how I would vote.

Councilor Wilson—Don't you think one way to restfiim faith in the hospital is to let the sun in?

Councilor Ward—There is nothing the City Hospital has to hide. I suggest a committee be appointed who represent the public, a committee of newspapermen, and let them go there and tell what they find. If I were sick I would want to go to the City Hospital.

Councilor Gallagher—I move that we adjourn for 24 hours. I think it would be better for the committee and for the situation generally.

FIGHT TO SAVE SIDEWALK

would not hurt the sanctity of the Common."

Commissioner Thomas H. Sullivan opened the hearing by stating the plan was to remove the sidewalk on the Common side of Beacon st., from a point 100 feet this side of Joy st., to Charles st., following the recommendation of Prof. McClintock, traffic expert. He said it would add nine feet of width and cost $12,000 or $14,000. After questioning he admitted it had originally been planned to remove the sidewalk opposite the State House, but it was found the law prohibited this.

ALREADY LOST TWO.

Mr. Coolidge said the Common has lost two sidewalks, and it is now planned to remove another to accomodate people too penurious to pay garage charges. He spoke of the thousands of children who cross Beacon st. daily and of the present traffic congestion.

Bernard J. Rothwell, vice-president of the Beacon Hill Association described Beacon st. as the most prominent and most nationally-known residential street in Boston.

"People come from all parts of the country to view Beacon st.," said Rothwell, "and it should not be converted into an outdoor garage. Property owners purchased houses there because they faced the Common and Public Garden, and they were led to believe the view of the public parks was guaranteed in perpetuity. To remove the sidewalk would provide increased parking and speeding space for out of town residents, and it would be unjustifiable."

TOO MUCH TRAFFIC

Marion C. Nichols, secretary of the Beacon Hill Association, spoke along the same lines, adding that there is too much traffic now.

Mary H. Buckingham, 84 Chestnut st.—"The sidewalk is needed by pedestrians."

Miss Thatcher—There are too many cars on Beacon Hill now, and it is very dangerous to cross Beacon st.

Horace D. Chapin, 60 Beacon st.: —"It would be little short of sacrilege to cut off the sidewalk, considering the sentiment relative to the Common, Beacon Hill and Shaw Memorial. I favor no parking on either side from Park to Charles st.

CAUSE ACCIDENTS

Dr. L. Vernon Briggs—I have lived on Beacon st. for 23 years and own property on the street from Charles st. to Chestnut. Parked cars now cause a great many accidents in backing in and out. It would relieve congestion if no parking were allowed. I don't believe I have been able to get to my own door with my car for a week.

Frances G. Curtis president Women's City Club—The women of my organization that I represent object to the removal of the sidewalk. The club located there for the view. At times now we have to go into the middle of the street to enter our own cars.

Edith R. Brown, Beacon st.—The sidewalk should be kept to retain the beauty of the Common. I am speaking for my mother, who founded the Boston Common Society,

LADY CHURSTON, LONDON DIVORCEE, WEDS AGAIN

London, Oct. 31 (AP)—Lady Churston, formerly known as Denise Orme, musical comedy actress, who was divorced by Lord Churston last April, was married today to Theodore William Wessel at the Marylebone registry office. In the suit for divorce brought by Lord Churston, Wessel was named and the case was not defended.

HUB BROKER AGREES TO RETURN $5300 TO WOMAN

George H. Perkins, a Boston broker, pleaded nolo contendere before Judge Donahue in the Superior Criminal Court today to an indictment charging him with the larceny of $5300 from Eleanor Eucelli. Perkins agreed to return the money and Judge Donahue continued the case to April 1, 1929, to enable him to do so.

HOLD 2 WOMEN IN CAMBRIDGE AS PICKETS

Two women pickets were arrested and six were taken into custody but released after questioning at the gates of the Cambridge Rubber Company plant, Main and Windsor sts., Cambridge, today where scour employes are on strike.

Mrs. Ida Burnell, 31, and Mrs. Dina Luteri, 36, were charged with intimidation and assault and battery. The latter has two children and lives in Franklin st.

They were arrested by Police Capt. John J. Cheney of Central sq. station, who took them to the station in his police automobile.

A patrol wagon which had been on the scene during the forenoon was sent away by Capt. Cheney, although 125 pickets patrolled in front of the gates with a crowd of about 100 looking on.

A guard of four policemen remained on duty during the day, but for the most part the striking workers sullenly watched their fellow-employes who have not left their jobs.

NEW YORK GIRL RUNAWAYS PLEAD GUILTY OF THEFT

Rose Pagliaro and Mary Janiach, youthful New York runaways, today pleaded guilty in Roxbury court to a charge of larceny of $100 from the Hotel Buckminster.

Sergt. Frank McNabb of the Back Bay station had the case continued until November 8 so that he could communicate with their parents. They were held in $100 and sent to the House of the Good Shepherd to await disposition.

According to the father of Miss Pagliar whose home is in Grant ave., New York city, she and the Janatch girl disappeared nearly a month ago. He said his daughter had made out checks of $500 against him.

U. S. TALKS WITH AUSTRALIA ON RADIOPHONE

Scherscisdy, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—Australia chatted with the United States for an hour today through a short wave radiophone station of the General Electric Company here.

D. M. Dow, official secretary of the Australian Government in the United States, exchanged greetings with E. M. Lawton, the American consul-general in Sydney, and a score of newspapermen of the two countries and General Electric officials discussed the elections which are in progress in both lands, and the weather.

Transmission was spotty, but by repetitions it was possible to carry on sustained conversations.

Australia was especially anxious to know what the odds are on Hoover, and sent back messages that Bruce's re-election is certain there.

The conversations took place between 7 and 8 a. m., which was between 10 and 11 p. m. in Sydney. Transmission from Scherscisdy was through experimental station W2XAF, using a wave length of 31.4 meters, and from Sydney over the 31.8 meter wave of station 3KE.

FIND WOOD ALCOHOL IN BRAINTREE LIQUOR

Cheering information that liquor seized from Samuel Cadaro of Kiley Hill st., Braintree, has been found by analysis to contain 16 per cent wood alcohol, was divulged in Quincy court today by Police Chief Patrick Heeney during Cadaro's arraignment.

Cadaro was charged with illegally selling liquor, keeping and exposing liquor for sale and maintaining a gaming and lottery nuisance. He was arrested during a second raid of police into the Hell's Kitchen area of Braintree. The case was continued for a week.

Prisoners Flog Dry Men for Breaking Into Jail

Mungie, Ind., Oct. 31 (INS)—A vigorous investigation was under way here today into the flogging in the county jail last night of two Anti-Saloon League operatives who were sentenced to be whipped by a "kangaroo court."

The dry workers, Edwin R. Devlin and Wayne Lucas, both of Indianapolis, received 20 lashes each from prisoners in the jail. They were charged with "breaking into jail."

NAMED ADMINISTRATOR OF MRS. DEAN'S ESTATE

Joseph J. Hurley of Boston today was appointed administrator of the $100,000 estate of Mrs. Agnes Whitehouse Russell Dean of Babcock st., Beacon Hill.

Administration was sought by Alexander Trow Dean, the third husband of the deceased, but Judge Dolan thought there would be ill feeling between him and Stanley Whitehouse Russell, an adopted son of Mrs. Dean, and it would be better to have a disinterested person administer the estate.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT AS BAY STATE CAMPAIGN NEARS END

RECORD VOTE TO BE CAST; WOMEN EAGER TO BALLOT

By D. FIELD BRITTLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the fireworks about over, Massachusetts is rumbling with impatience to be at the business of balloting. It has given rousing receptions in turn to Hoover and Alfred E. Smith, heard them out on the campaign issues, flocked to the rostrums of speakers of lesser magnitude and now that it is left to its own devices for a time seems amply ready to write its decision.

Although that verdict is locked in the many minds of the electorate there is no uncertainty about it in party headquarters.

Hoover managers are confident that Massachusetts will stay Republican and the Smith forces are equally sure that this is a Democratic year. Nevertheless, being alive to the fact that their campaign is unlike others of the past, both sides are busy these last days at organization tasks on the one hand, but it is afreet to fight all the way.

The final campaign rare figures to confidently extent in the presidential race from the Democratic point of view. Walsh has a great following here, and a goodly portion of it among the Republicans.

Because of his political likeness to Smith, he is expected by the Governor's forces to exert a pulling power in Smith's favor, since in other years he has been elected well ahead of his party ticket.

Big Vote Expected

Regardless of party divisions, it appears that the people of the Bay State are determined to have their say in this election and with the same enthusiasm with which they have listened to every passing speaker have recorded their names on the registration books.

Approximately 1,729,000 have enrolled, a great increase over previous registrations Boston alone registering 50,000 more than voted in 1924.

Every district reports unparalleled interest, particularly among women, throughout the state. President Coolidge, relating that at least 90 per cent of those registration there were Republican women.

When the election tonals of 1924 are dismissed both sides assume that the figures are not entirely indicative of the political state of mind. In that year Massachusetts had its native son, Coolidge, to vote for and gave him 703,000 against 336,000 for Davis and 141,000 for LaFollette.

Democrats recall also that the enthusiasm which was in full flood tide failed to elect his friend, William M. Butler, to the Senate when he contested with Lodge. For this unexpired term of Henry Cabot Lodge in 1926.

Mr. Coolidge is expected to return to cast his vote for Hoover, but whether he will turn his vote in this state or any other in behalf of the party ticket is not apparent.

Rival Parties Claim Rhode Island and Connecticut

New Haven, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Southern New England States of Connecticut and Rhode Island are taking their politics in concentrated portions as the national dispute over Hoover and Smith nears its end.

The leaders of both parties are claiming victory. When these predictions are made in public they are clustered mostly on both sides, by large assemblages of the Connecticut and Rhode Island voters themselves. The bystander can pay his money and make his own forecast whether the New England States—Connecticut's seven and Rhode Island's five —eventually will go to Smith or to Hoover, or be split between them.

Both states have been voting for Republican presidential nominees for years, but the Democrats are making an insistent appeal in 1928. They say only seven states in the Union that never ratified the prohibition amendment. Each has the highest foreign born and Catholic population, and each is the home of large colonies sprung from immigrant stock from continental Europe.

Nowhere are racial considerations in the present national campaign more persistently discussed.

Rhode Island was singled out from the beginning of the campaign by Democratic leaders, who argued it would be one of the most likely of all of the Eastern group to go for Smith. They based this hope not only on the known wet sentiment of the state, but on the further fact that Senator Peter Gerry, a Democrat, had twice overturned the Republican normalcy and is this year a candidate for re-election.

The Republicans have countered the Democratic attack in Rhode Island by asserting that the prosperity of the state's dominant industrial interests rests on the protective tariff.

The Italian colony is large and there are many of the German, Austrian and Irish voters there. Nearly all of them live in the cities and it is upon the cities that the Democrats base their greatest hope.

The Smith supporters are claiming every one of the twenty votes of Connecticut, although most of them are normally Republican. The claim is based on the belief that Democrats

Sunday Baseball
Very Popular Measure
Opponents Quibble

Bill Eaton, Genius
Friend of Football
Hinkey's Lateral Pass

By NICK FLATLEY

SUNDAY SPORT FOES MERELY QUIBBLE

NOW that Hoover and Smith have come in and out of Boston, the campaign interest seems to be centering around Sunday baseball. This correspondent has been battered with epistles, after remarking that a discussion of the matter might be staged in these columns.

Nick Flatley

The letters have been all one way, though—for Sunday sports—so the forum idea isn't necessary. Looks like most of the boys and girls are for the measure, which is as it should be. They do get riled up, though, about some of the things the opponents say.

One young man breaks into profanity when he hears some herald of righteousness proclaim that law would force teams to build ball parks in the back yards of the churches, because of its wording.

This refers, of course, to that section of the proposed law which reads on the ballot: "That no sport or game shall be permitted in a place other than a public playground or park within 1000 feet of any regular place of worship."

Now, sports are permitted on public playgrounds and public parks no matter where they be. The law intends to keep things that way. Commercialized sport is prohibited within a 1000 yards of any sacred edifice.

Atty.-Gen. Joseph Warner, in the official instructions to voters, mailed to every registered citizen, says: "That no sport or game shall be permitted in a place, other than a public playground or park, within 1000 feet of any regular place of worship."

On page 6 of the same official instructions, the majority report of the legislative committee on legal affairs, which advocated the referendum, reads: "Under no circumstances can these games be permitted to be played within 1000 feet of any regular place of religious worship."

The attorney-general and the majority report preclude any doubt as to the intent of the petition. Quibbling about a couple of commas, picking an ambiguity, would seem to show how weak the opposition really is in the matter of arguments.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON BASEBALL WOULD CHASE AWAY 99 PER CENT OF THOSE MONDAY MORNING BLUES. THAT ALSO SHOULD CARRY IT.

Fresh air at a ball yard and a peek at Babe Ruth would be much more exhilarating and uplifting than four hours of gasolene fumes and a view of the rear end of an antiquated flivver.

BILL EATON, GREAT FOOTBALL WRITER

BILL EATON, who has gone out to cover that great last story, was one of the finest sport writers this country has known. He had style, viewpoint and background, and loved any form of athletics.

He was, in our humble opinion, the best of all the football writers. He was a classmate of Frank Cavanaugh's at Dartmouth, and a member of the squad of Wallp McCormack's eleven, the team that put the "D" in Dartmouth by beating Brown for the first time.

Bill carried his love of the game all through life. He liked baseball and all the other sports, but he lived for football. His articles, generally "By Touchdown" combined knowledge, color and understanding. Bill might have been one of the famous authors, but he preferred the newspaper game.

We recall one of his stories, on the occasion of the death of Percy Haughton. "And Haughton's tomb," he wrote, "should be under the turf of the Stadium, where the thundering cleats of triumphant Harvard backs would lull him to eternal rest."

Now Bill has gone along with P. D. and Spud Pidgon and other Dartmouth heroes, and football has lost a sincere and gifted friend.

HORNSBY IS REPORTED TRADED TO PITTSBURGH NOW. HE MAY BE EVENTUALLY, BUT HE WILL HAVE A YEAR AT CHICAGO FIRST.

Johnny Garvey's ribs may or may not be broken, but his heart still is in the right place.

FRANK HINKEY DISCOVERED LATERAL PASS

HARVARD'S success with the lateral pass, a success that will lead many a coach to try the sideway toss rather than the forward as his principal means of offense, recalls poor old Frank Hinkey.

The greatest end that ever lived coached Yale one year, back before the war. And he taught his team a lateral passing game. He had to uncover it in the Princeton joust, else he would have caught Harvard flatfooted. It was the strangest of all football innovations. The ball went flipping from back to back, all over the field.

The great Hinkey tried to accomplish in one fall what coaches now will work on for two or three years. And almost succeeded. He failed because he could not uncover, what the ordinary mortal did not have his conception of the game, and his own remarkable ability to grasp its intricacies.

One of these days, though, you will see the year's champion pulling the exact game that the only Hinkey discovered.

Schaaf and Payne to Meet Again

Willie Schaaf was signed yesterday to meet Tiger Jack Payne, heavyweight champion of Australia, in the 10 round feature bout of the Arena A. C. at the Boston Arena on the night of Nov. 13, one week from next Tuesday night.

Schaaf and Payne put up a blazing battle in the Arena a few weeks ago. Payne won the decision, after a stubborn uphill battle.

Goes West

Willie Hoare, Tedesco professional, and Mrs. Hoare will leave for California November 15, where they will spend the winter months. Hoare plans to play on some of the West coast courses.

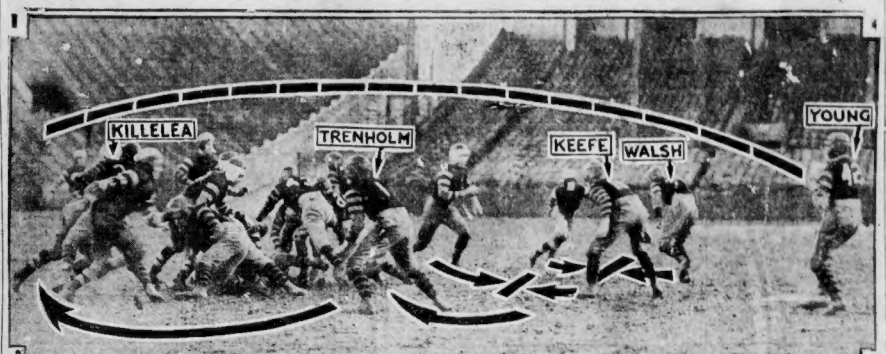
Harvard Developing Aerial Game

TOSS THAT LAUNCHED A VICTORY SCORE FOR HYDE PARK



READY TO HURL PIGSKIN TO RACING END

Charlestown was leading Hyde Park, 6-0, when this picture was taken. Young, Hyde Park quarterback, is ready to throw the ball to Killelea, Hyde Park end, who is breaking through the Charlestown line. Killelea ran to the Charlestown 20-yard line, where he caught the toss and ran for the touchdown. Young polished off by kicking the extra point, giving Hyde Park the game, 7-6. Note the protection given Young by Keefe and Walsh. Trenholm is set to take out the Charlestown end, who is rushing in to hurry the play. —International Newsreel Photo

ONLY WEAK POINT OF ATTACK

Harvard is spending plenty of time these days in the development of a series of passes which should play important parts in the coming four games on the Crimson schedule.

Two of its coming opponents, Penn and Yale, have highly touted passing attacks and the Crimson is devoid of one ground gaining pass.

Give Harvard a real forward pass to go along with that lateral pass and Harvard has an attack that is in a class by itself in the intercollegiate football ranks.

Harvard's running attack is sound, its lateral play is perfect, and with a good pass the Crimson offense could please a Rockne, Cavanaugh or a Dobie.

There is no reason why Harvard should not be adept in the passing game. The Crimson has any number of passing combinations which would score aplenty if given the right sort of play.

TRADE BATTLES BRIGHTON AT WIGWAM

By DICK McSWEENEY

Another schoolboy clash, Trade versus Brighton, will be played at Braves Field today.

Trade was regarded as a dark horse in Hub schoolboy ranks earlier in the season but it has failed to live up to expectations. Defensively, Trade is a strong eleven, but when the Trade backs take the ball they fail to get anywhere.

Brighton, too, has shown a lack of good offense, but its defense is almost on a par with that of Trade school.

With two such strong defensive teams playing today, brilliant football can hardly be expected, but Coach Tilton is apt to spring a surprise on Tom Scanlon's eleven.

Brighton showed a flash of good football in the South Boston contest when a determined drive gave it a touchdown. But the South Boston backs found the Brighton line easy to penetrate and Steve White's eleven won the game.

Spack and McArdle are two fleet backs whom the Brighton forwards must stop. McArdle is especially dangerous when he skirts the ends, while Spack is a line-smasher.

Lappen has been hooting some fair punts for Brighton and his toe will have to get Coach Scanlon's plan out of any tight situations.

Buckley and Doyle are playing a capable game in the Brighton backfield while Burton and Holmes are doing well in the line.

If Brighton should win today it will be the first victory of the season for the Scanlon eleven. As the record now stands, Brighton has lost one game and tied two.

Trade has yet to win a game but hopes to start in the right direction today.

The St. Peter's-St. James' struggle this Saturday is going to be a game worth watching. Dodger Carroll's team has not lost a game thus far, while St. Peter's has a 20-0 victory over Fitchburg.

Charlestown used a criss-cross play yesterday that gave it a touchdown. Ferent gave O'Neil the ball and O'Neil galloped 50 yards for a score. Hyde Park was completely baffled on the play and not an enemy hand touched the Charlestown back as he raced down the field. Curiously enough, Charlestown did not use this play again throughout the game.

Young's pass to Killelea in yesterday's Hyde Park-Charlestown game was one of the best plays of the afternoon. The Hyde Park backs carried out their assignments perfectly.

Marsters' Knee Not Yet in Condition

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 31.—While several reserves showed up well in practice for the Dartmouth grid squad, it became more apparent that the whole regular backfield as well as the first ends would be unavailable for service against Yale Saturday.

Al Marsters, Fred Breithut and Shep Wolff, the flashiest trio of ball carriers and pass tossers on the squad were absent and are reported to be in no better shape, while Heinie Swarthout and Hal Booma, both bearing side injuries, watched their successors at the ends from the sidelines.

Bankhart reappeared at practice after his short stay in the hospital, but is suffering from jaundice and can do little in the way of real work.

Coach Hawley included Capt. Black in the group of men excused for the day, but the Green leader refused to be idle and donned a uniform to watch his team-mates through their paces.

As Coach Hawley sent his men through a long dummy scrimmage, Bob Lee at right halfback and Ed Sutton at fullback showed up well in their new regular berths. Sutton went out on Monday's drill with an injury, but he was back and dashed about as if he were in perfect shape.

Eddie Reece at the other halfback post and Bob Harris at quarterback completed Hawley's reorganized backfield. Magee, Stokes, Hetfield and McInnes all had a shot at the end positions, but Hawley did not seem satisfied enough to put any man definitely in the vacant berths.

From tackle to tackle the regular line was on hand, but the work of Cole, Armstrong, Sherman, Lyle and Andres was of the lightest order. As the situation stands, Hawley has six vacancies open in the regular ranks with three leading reserves out for the season and two other good understudies benched in Wolff and Bankart.

Coach Cannell had his scrub eleven working on Yale plays again this afternoon and according to the tentative program for the week is going to scrimmage his blue team against the mixed regulars and reserves today.

Star Bulldog Quartet Taking It Easy

New Haven, Oct. 31.—With four regulars absent from the lineup, Yale held its first scrimmages since the West Point game. Cool weather gave the practice added zest and the players were driven through more than half an hour's scrimmage with the freshmen.

The 1932 combination, an unusually strong eleven, at no time threatened the varsity and, defensively, it checked the varsity only once.

Four regulars who are out of condition were absent from the lineup, including left halfback Johnny Garvey, quarterback Johnny Hobert, fullback Chauncey Hubbard, and guard Norman Hall.

Herine Ellis replaced Hobert Brewster Loud was given the line ramming assignment laid down by Garvey. Jim Stewart succeeded Hall and Ken Dunn was given Hubbard's berth.

Loud's 50-yard run, paving the way for the first touchdown, featured the ground gaining.

Garvey was not at the field, although his injuries are only slight.

All the other injured players are rapidly recovering and will be in the Dartmouth game, it is fully expected, except Fred Lonser, whose broken ribs will shelve him for several weeks.

THREE PIRATE ICE STARS ARE HOLDOUTS

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31 (AP)—With today set as the final day of grace for holdout players of the National Hockey League by President Frank Calder, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Benny Leonard, the team's new owner, still were without the signed contracts of three star players, Darragh, Milks and Worters.

Leonard issued orders for a conference with his holdouts, but with the sole exception of "Kid" Colton, who signed, none showed up at headquarters. Leonard said he was through catering to the trio. "They either come in today and sign or they are out of hockey for 1928," the former welterweight champion of the world said.

Worters, who is accredited with being the best goalie in the professional ranks, last year received $4000. For the 1928 season he demanded $8000. Leonard offered $5000. Darragh and Milks each were offered substantial increases over their last year salary but each refused to accept terms.

If the trio are not signed before midnight tonight they automatically suffer suspension through President Calder's ultimatum.

Gagnon Wins in Feature of Great Testimonial

OLD TIMERS MAKE HIT IN RING

Burke Benefit Bouts Are Success; Over 9000 Persons Pay Tribute to Late Inspector

By JACK CONWAY

JACK GAGNON'S gun-fire was too heavy for Tony Fuente in a sizzling six-round bout, which was the feature of the Mike Burke testimonial at the Boston Arena. Gagnon's margin was a narrow one, but the decision was a proper one.

It was a fast, fast bout all the way. Gagnon was the aggressor most of the tussle, his heavy socks driving Fuente back. The Mexican flashed in the last session and scored effectively with a long left hook to the head. His opponent favored with the crowd and as a result the decision was not popular with all of the fans.

Jack Conway

Johnny Vacca of Brighton returned to the Public Garden under th Al Delmont owners in a four-round event. He outscored Harry Roberts of the West End in a tussle which was in doubt until the last minute. Vacca was obliged to make a desperate rush to nose out the Harry Kelley entry.

JAKE ZARAMBY of Lynn, one of the most promising featherweights in the country, continued his sensational run of victories when he won from Tommy Harper of Medford in a four rounder. It will take quite a piece of fighting machinery to whip Jerome Zaramby.

Jimmy Scully of South Boston proved too classy for Battling Rabrelle of the North End in another four session mill.

THE big crowd got a real thrill when Gus Sonnenberg, world's most spectacular wrestler went 15 minutes to a draw. Sonnenberg attempted several of his famous flying tackles, but the veteran Staniak was able to avoid them. There was an abundance of rough and tumble wrestling jammed into the 15 minutes that the bout lasted.

THERE were numerous exhibition bouts. The oldtimers, in particular, made a hit with the fans.

Jack Britton did his stuff with Nate Siegal. Eddie Shevlin was in there with Jimmy Sacco, Red Chapman opposed Honeyboy Finegan, Jim Maloney tossed punches at Elmer Rioux. Eddie Curley opposed Tommy Daley, Jack Twin Sullivan boxed with Paul Weinheim, Tom Kirby stepped along with Johnny Indrisano, while George Flate exchanged socks with Freddie O'Connor.

Kid Phippin and Shadow Bowden gave the gang something to laugh about.

ALL of the theatrical folks were there from Jimmy Gallagher, famous radio star of hanging on fame, down the line.

Mayor Nichols gave the 11 o'clock toast of the Elks as Mike Burke was a member of the Revere Lodge.

Judge Murray and former Mayor Curley paid fitting tribute to the memory of the late police inspector.

More than 9000 persons attended the testimonial. The receipts will go close to $15,000.

Everybody connected with the affair in any form gave their services free.

The committee is deserving of great praise for its fine work. It raised a substantial sum of money for the family of Mike Burke and also furnished a brilliant entertainment.

POLICE FAVOR SUNDAY SPORT PETITION

Among the most ardent supporters of the Sunday sports law, to be voted on next Tuesday, are police officials in many Massachusetts cities and towns.

The law proposed by initiative petition is strongly favored by Michael H. Crowley, superintendent of police in Boston, the State's big prize city, and by "constables" in some of the smallest communities in the State.

"The enthusiasm in favor of the measure by police officials is an indication of the fact that there is little merit to statements to the effect that Sunday sports will not be a benefit to the State from a moral standpoint," said Alfred G. Doe, "father" of the Sunday sports movement, in an interview today.

"In cities in which Sunday sports to which admissions are charged, are now enjoyed, court and police officials have gone on record to the effect that there are fewer vio'a tions of laws compiled of in the courts on Mondays following Sunday games than on Mondays following "no games."

Supt. Crowley says: "The present policy, in effect in some places, of allowing the law to be broken by collections at Sunday baseball or football games, some under the guise of 'Amateur Sports,' should be discontinued. Acceptance of the initiative law will be a distinct benefit to the public in general. Such Sunday sports as have been conducted in Boston have not increased crime. The police departments certainly would like to have the law accepted."

Michael W. Conlon, chief of police in North Adams, declares, "I favor the law because I believe Sunday sports would provide entertainment of the right type, and, in a way, would be a great aid to the police departments. If proper Sunday recreation is not provided the average man will seek his idea of entertainment elsewhere; and the average method today is a law-breaking type of pleasure.

"In my jurisdiction Sunday sports as now conducted stop gambling on a large scale, have decreased drinking of liquor, and there have been fewer motor accidents.

"I heartily endorse the plan to have Sunday sports localized and believe the people put on the games should have a right to charge a reasonable admission."

Fordham Varsity Works on Line Plays

New York, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Completely disregarding the passing game, Fordham's varsity eleven scored three touchdowns against the seconds in the first scrimmage in preparation for the West Virginia game to be played election day at the Yankee stadium.

Prior to the skirmish, Major Frank Cavanaugh issued orders to Larry Dahlke, regular quarterback, to refrain from aerial plays.

Although the second team was unaware of the plan, it was not able to halt the offtackle smashes in the first period, when the first reserves realized it and closed in with its secondary defense.

Stun Stubelski, taking the place of Joe Fontana who had been named instead of Al Cullen, injured halfback, scored all three touchdowns. He was the only player back who could gain with any consistency.

Stubelski took the ball around right end for the first score, after carrying it over from the 35-yard mark on the first.

FRED BRICE DRIVES U. OF MAINE SQUAD

Orono, Me., Oct. 31—Coach Fred Brice began to drive his University of Maine gridders hard in preparation for the battle with Colby Saturday.

The air attack which was hardly opened up against Bates will be turned loose this week and several new plays will be added to the Pale Blue repertoire. Secret practice will be held all week.

The line, although completely outplaying the Bates shock troops showed many weak spots Monday and received a stiff workout on the sled.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"HOW does Massachusetts stand on the invitation to join the National Boxing Association?" Mr. Boston asked Gene Buckley of the Bay State Commission.

"We decided that question several years ago," replied the commissioner. "At the time New York and some other states were anxious that we go into a national body. We declared that such a move could not be made under the Massachusetts law.

"The New York Commission then gave the matter more serious thought and decided to accept our decision. As a result, New York never joined the National Boxing Association."

"Would the Massachusetts Commission enter into a working agreement with the National Boxing Association?" pressed Mr. Boston.

"We would consider a working agreement," replied the commissioner. "Massachusetts already has working agreements with New York, Porto Rico, several Canadian provinces, Australia and quite a number of states in this country.

"A working agreement may be in writing or only an oral affair. It is an agreement by which we try to make boxers who show here live up to their agreements in other states."

"MASSACHUSETTS did not have any kind of an agreement with California at the time Joe Dundee refused to go through with his title bout with Ace Hudkins. California asked us for a ruling on the case and we upheld the decision of the Coast ring board suspending all parties concerned in the transaction."

"President Prehm of the National Boxing Association, who is also chairman of the Illinois Commission," went on Mr. Boston, "says that in the event Massachusetts refuses to join the National Boxing Association that he will ask it to enter into a working agreement with the Illinois body. What would be the attitude of your commission on such a proposition?"

"We have always favored working agreements," declared the commissioner. "I believe a working agreement between Massachusetts and Illinois would be the better solution of the affair."

"In the event of such an agreement being made, would the Massachusetts body accept old rulings of the Illinois board?"

"We would only be concerned with rulings made from the date the working agreement went into effect. Of course, if a ruling was unjust, and this was apparent on the record of the case, we would not consider ourselves bound to follow it."

"WHAT do you think of the system of certain boxing bodies in naming synthetic champions?" queried Mr. Borton.

"Titles are won and lost in the ring," was the quick reply. "I always felt boxing commissions went out of their proper sphere when they attempted to name the champions.

"I believe the sport writers should be the ones to say who are the outstanding boxers in the various divisions. The writers are liable to hold different opinions, and this creates interest in boxing.

EIGHT PIONEER REGULARS ON SIDELINES

Capt. Dorfman and seven other regulars on the Boston University eleven are still on the injured squad and unable to get into uniform as yet.

The Pioneers are in the worst shape of the season, as the result of the recent game with Boston College. Several regulars were forced to play in that game when they really should have been on the sidelines.

As a result, most of them further aggravated old injuries or contracted new ones and Coaches Reggie Brown and Ed Robinson are faced with the difficult problem of mustering strength enough to battle with Springfield, Saturday.

LEADER IS OUT

Capt. Dorfman is out of the line-up with a bruised shoulder. Jimmie Dincolo, star guard, has been shifted to the pivot position in Dorfman's absence. Dincolo saw some action as snapper back his first year, but has done most of his playing at the guard position.

Spitzer, Fyerabend, Buckwalter and Miller are the other line men out of the game.

Miller is down with pneumonia, and probably will be lost to the squad for the remainder of the season. He was a regular left tackle, and in his absence Buckwalter and Freeman took care of that position.

The B. U. team now believes that left tackle is a jinx position as Buckwalter and Freeman have both received leg injuries and cannot attend practice. Quinn is not superstitious, however, and worked out there and has suffered no ill fortune yet.

Al Spitzer, who turned in a great game against the Eagles, has not put in an appearance yet this week, as he is still suffering from a charley horse.

PILOTS ARE O. K.

The backfield men are in a desirable condition. Glen O'Brien and Ralph Marston, both signal callers, are the only men of the backfield in first class shape.

Crab Walke, rugged fullback, has a bruised knee and will be out until Thursday. This will be Walke's first injury in two years.

Bass, Hootstein and Perkins, the freshmen triplets, constitute the roster of injured halfbacks. All three are limping about with strained ankles and will rest on the sidelines for a few days longer. These men went into the B. U. game in none too good condition and are now suffering as a result.

Coach Reggie Brown was forced to abandon scrimmage and pay plays to give up the idea today, because some of his regulars surprise him with a quick recovery.

B. U. has a great respect for Springfield and feels that they must have their full strength in order to win over the gymnasts Saturday. A ray of sunshine appeared in the person of Irving Weiner who returned to practice for the first time after a three weeks' layoff.

WEINER BACK

Weiner has been suffering with a carbuncle on his spine, and it was not until yesterday that he received permission from Dr. David H. Stearns, the team physician, to return to practice.

Weiner is a halfback and was inserted at once into the scrilled first team backfield. He will be given every opportunity to win a starting berth in the game Saturday, providing his condition warrants it.

Contant May Play Forward

"Ponzi" Contant, full-blown and fiery member of the Boston Tigers, probably will be used on the forward line this fall instead of on defense.

Manager Eddie Powers is much impressed with the speed "Ponzi" is showing and believes that he will work as well as substitute for Johnny Loucks on the left wing.

Last season Contant was handicapped much of the time by a bad knee, which was injured early in the season. He has shown no recurrence of the trouble in practice thus far and is faster on his feet than last season despite the fact that he is carrying 190 pounds.

Eli Gould will give the boys through another hard workout this noon at the Arena. He is much pleased with the way the team is coming and feels that it will be right in stride for the opening game with Syracuse Chanticleers Newark "Pegs" at the Arena, November 12.

Ray Beats Ovati in 16-Mile Race

Philadelphia, Oct. 31 (AP)—Joe Ray, veteran American runner, was back at the head of the class today and with another record tucked away among his souvenirs.

Eli Gould, the amazing French Algerian Marathon winner at Amsterdam, fell victim to Ray's flying feet in a 16-mile handicap race last night, which the American clicked off in 1 hour 27 minutes and 18 1-5 seconds. Ray's time in the 15 miles was 1 hour 22 minutes and five seconds.

FUNDAMENALS DRILLED INTO COLBY ELEVEN

Waterville, Me., Oct. 31—Coach Eddie Roundy gave his Colby football charges a long drill on fundamentals which followed with an hour of offensive scrimmage.

A defensive scrimmage against the freshmen using Maine plays and formations lasted a half hour. Larry Arber, the big second string center who left college about ten days ago, is back with the squad again.

Lobdell, the regular right tackle, was injured more seriously in the Bowdoin game than was first thought and may be unable to play against Maine.

MANOLIAN HAS SIX SPARRING PARTNERS

With no less than six sparring partners in his camp at Wamesit, George "Wop" Manolian, Dorchester middleweight, is preparing for the most important ring battle of his career with more cash than ever before, and when he steps into the ring with Al Mello of Lowell at Mechanics Building, on next Wednesday night, it is expected that no will be in greater condition than ever before, and his Dorchester supporters are already looking forward to victory.

For Manolian, unheralded and unsung, took the measure of four of the outstanding middleweights in the country to earn this shot at Mello and, as a result, the Dorchester boxer is sure to be heavily backed in this fight.

Jack Palmer, Walcott Langford, Joe Simonich and Arthur Flynn all ruled as favorites over Manolian, but the Dorchester boy scored victories. Of course they were stunning upsets, especially his victories over Langford and Simonich, and as a result Manolian today regards himself as the master of the middleweight division.

Manolian's ambition is to step into the same ring with Champion Mickey Walker and such a match may be clinched for him on the new Boston Madison Square Garden at North Station late in December if he bumps this bout with Mello.

Arthur Flynn, Lawrence middleweight, is providing most of the action for Manolian in his camp. Using the southpaw style of Mello, Flynn works with Manolian every day, and the Dorchester man is having no trouble in probing this awkward style.

Army Line Subs Get Special Attention

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Army worked long and earnestly preparing for the game with Dennie University Saturday. The fixed lights flanking the plains field were in full glow before Coach Biff Jones called the practice session off.

All the varsity men were in their places for the scrimmage period, but changes were made frequently both in the backfield and on the line. Jones gave personal attention to the play of the substitute forwards.

The Army's head mentor feels that there is room for improvement in the work of several of the reserve linemen.

Spearing gave way to Parham. Maxwell relieved Perry at the other tackle position. Humber, Walsh and Fulton were guards who were given an opportunity to play after Dibbs and Hammick had been taken out. Carlmark and Meagher were in at the wings with Hall at center.

During the offensive thrusts other ends in action were Malloy, Marsden, Wehle and Lyons. The latter was particularly effective in taking out tackler and down field work.

TECH CLOSES SOCCER SEASON AGAINST CLARKE

The soccer team of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology plays Clark today in its last home game of the season. Coach Welch will not make any major changes in the lineup that defeated Worcester Polytech last Saturday.

RICKARD MUST QUIT POST IN HUB GARDEN

Boston's Madison Square Garden has agreed to comply with the Massachusetts boxing law so that it will be able to secure a license to stage ring matches here.

The Massachusetts law requires that a club cannot be licensed if nonresidents are on its list of officers.

Tex Rickard is listed as president of the Boston Garden and William Carey as vice-president. Neither is a resident of Massachusetts.

The Boston Garden will be obliged to hold a meeting at which local men will be named as officers. It has agreed to do this.

Jack Hardwick, former Harvard football star, is the leading spirit in the Boston Garden. It was Hardwick who made the application for a license.

When local men are elected as officers in place of Rickard and Carey, the license will be granted.

Rickard and Carey will remain identified with the Garden, but not as officers.

Four Teams Tied in Bike Race

Detroit, Oct. 31 (AP)—Four teams were tied for first place at the close of 24 hours of riding in the international six-day bicycle race here today.

The leaders among the 13 teams entered were Lesourner-Brochardo, French team; Cugnoni-Blanchet, French team; Waltlour-Duelberg, German-Austrian team, and Bocchetti-Guyot, Italian-French team.

Tufts Varsity in Dummy Scrimmage to Smooth Play

STAR END IS NOT YET IN SHAPE

Arlanson, 160 Pound Wingman, Took Hammering From Heavy Brown Backs

A very light session is scheduled at Tufts Oval this afternoon for the first-string aggregation. Signal practise and dummy scrimmage will take up the greater part of the workout. Several of the new plays that were given out will be used in the dummy scrimmage in order that the varsity may spring them on New Hampshire on Saturday.

The second team will scrimmage with the junior varsity in order that Coach Sampson may get a line on some of the substitute players who were unable to get into Saturday's game. Replacement material is still at a premium at the Medford institution.

The junior varsity outfit will meet Huntington in their first game of the season this Friday and some of the men who look well in that game are due to receive serious consideration for varsity berths in the future.

Harry Arlanson, star end, was the only first-string man not in uniform for the first workout after the Brown game. Harry, who only weighs 160 pounds, took a hammering at the hands of the heavier brown backs that may keep him out of Saturday's game. His loss will be felt, especially in the forward passing game.

Tufts has started the same lineup in all the games to date and if possible intends to start the same lineup in all the rest. Coach Sampson believes that a team develops a better spirit of team play if the lineup remains unchanged. He thinks that the players get to understand just what the other fellow may be depended on to do.

Indications are that Tufts will employ its forward passing attack, that so nearly defeated Brown, as its chief weapon against the heavier New Hampshire team. Hunky Phillips will continue to heave them, as his work in the Brown game was nearly perfect.

BLAIR, McNAB GOING WELL

Bobby Blair and Alex McNab, two of the most colorful players in soccer, will be included in the league leading Fall River eleven when that team trots out to oppose the Woodsies and the former Hub pair are sure to get a great reception from local fans who well remember the many brilliant exhibitions they gave as members of the Woodsies.

Blair has appeared at the local pitch in a Fall River uniform before but McNab will be making his initial bow for the Marksmen against his old love.

According to reports the pair are going great guns for the league leaders with Blair leading the goal-scorers and the Hub defense will have to be at the top of their form in order to stop the trio.

The State league race is a good one with Fall River, Lusitania and Whittalls all close to the top in the order named. A slight margin separates the trio and any one of them has a chance to win.

The lead may change this weekend for the young Marksmen have two stiff games Morgans and Whittalls being their opponents.

Lucy Recs are the only undefeated club in the circuit, but they, too, have a stiff hurdle to surmount as they play the General Electrics at Lynn Saturday and Abbot Worsted at Forge Village Sunday.

The Intermediate Schools league race is providing snappy games with most of the elevens showing a great improvement over last season's playing. The Washington, Michael Angelo, Bigelow, Donald McKay and Theodore Roosevelt elevens are the cream of the league and continue to win most of their games.

Fields Stops Baker in Second

Los Angeles, Oct. 31 (AP)—Jackie Fields, flashy Los Angeles welterweight, knocked out Sergt. Sammy Baker in the second round of a 10-round bout here tonight.

The knockout came after four minutes and 20 seconds of fighting, during which Fields had held the lead in the battling.

A terrific left hook landed Baker flat on his back and he was counted out by the referee.

Baker weighed 144½ pounds and Fields one pound less.

Wilczewski Having Tough Year at B. C.

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Zeus Wilczewski, rough and raw-boned guard on the Boston College eleven, is having a lot of hard luck this season.

It is Zeus' final year at Boston College. Having three great campaigns back of him he was intent on winding up his career at Newton in a blaze of glory and leaving behind a record that would live through the B. C. grid history.

But he hasn't been able to get started, due to injuries, and the season is now at the mid-way mark. He'll have to play like a demon for the remaining five games on the B. C. schedule to leave behind the desirable memories.

And at present it looks as though Wilczewski will not play against Manhattan at Fenway Park next Saturday. He may engage in the movies for a short period, but the best big chance Zeus will have is against Fordham

To start off the story, Zeus suffered a foot injury early in the season.

INJURY STOPPED ZEUS

This injury was the first shot of Fortune. It kept Zeus back enough to allow Al Morelli to win the starting guard assignment against Detroit University. Zeus came back strong, however, and took the place back again for the tussle with the Navy. But even then Morelli had a turn on the infirmary list, and that was chiefly the reason for Zeus hobbling back into the berth.

Wilczewski was hurt in the Navy game. It was his shoulder that received the bump from the Middies and not his lower extremities. Zeus played most of the Duke game and came forth unscarred.

But another part of his anatomy suffered a crack from the Pioneers' Zeus took it on the right knee and played only in the first half. Right now he'd make first class material for a beautiful set of X-ray photos.

His foot, his knee and his shoulder are all in bad condition. Hot towels are being applied to his knee every day by Trainer Frank Jones. But the foot and shoulder will probably be bothering him for the rest of the season.

VERSATILE ATHLETE

Zeus has had a varied career at the Heights. He has played at guard, tackle and in the backfield. He has thrown passes, done all kinds of kicking and even carried the ball.

He weighs 195 pounds and is six feet one inch tall. His experience and ability made him a most valuable man to Coach McKenney.

The Boston College squad is showing a few signs of life at the Heights these days. Joe McKenney gave them a smart talking to after the B U. game and it has served to snap the club out of its indifferent attitude. Manhattan is expected to be easy for Boston College, but the B. C. team won't head into the game with the same carefree mien it did against Boston University.

The drive for the Fordham game is under way and the boys are all working hard to have the team at its peak when the epic with Major Cavanaugh's eleven comes about.

College Stars on B. A. A. Hockey Team

Jack Hutchinson, the "old fox" of amateur hockey, plans to get back into the game again after a year or two of comparative idleness. He is managing the new B. A. A. hockey team, which began practice at the Arena Monday in preparation for a busy season.

Hutchinson is much pleased by the class of the material which has reported for practice. Among others he has Sykes Hardy, Bob Nelson, Jack Fitzgerald, Johnny Mauser and Bob Nelson from last year's University Club team, and Gyp Lawless, captain and outstanding forward of the Boston University team of last year.

Ed Mullowney, giant B. C. and University Club defense man, also is expected to report. In this event last year's University Club defense will be transplanted intact, with Hardy and Mullowney at the points and Flute in goal.

Penn Varsity Ends Shifted Around

Philadelphia, Oct. 31—The first move in Pennsylvania's contemplated shakeup of the varsity ends came when Joe Olezy and Johnny Ball, who started against the Navy last week, were replaced by Joey Schaaf and Sydney Gorvin, Jr., respectively.

It is more than likely the two new comers will face the University of Chicago on Saturday at the kick-off.

Leon Weesgats, varsity center, is definitely out of the Chicago game with a broken finger. Carrel will take his place.

Capt. Paul Scull and the other regulars were used sparingly. They took light limbering up exercises their first since the Navy game, and Scull practiced punting for a while.

Left tackle John Smith was also another day of rest Kuen taking his place, with Monk playing his usual right guard.

Stern Steps

Arthur Stern defeated Charles A. Cross, 5 and 6, in the final match of class C golf tournament at the Tedesco Country Club, Swampscott.

Dartmouth and Yale Weak for Battle

By BILL GRIMES

So strenuous was the article of football in the Stadium and Bowl last Saturday, that Dartmouth and Yale will be unable to put their full quota of strength into action this week.

The Green will be minus the services of Al Marsters while Yale will be forced to carry on without Johnny Garvey. The loss of these stars will take the edge off the contest.

If the report is true that Chick Meehan, the New York University mentor, lost about 13 pounds the week before the Fordham game, he will be back at his old playing weight before Saturday, when the Violent Violets play Lou Little's Georgetown aggregation.

Although Georgetown had run up a total of 218 points in five games, 64 more than any other team in the country, there is no outstanding high scorer on the Washington outfit.

When a team can accomplish such a feat as ringing 43 points per game and still have no player battling for scoring honors, it is a machine and far more dangerous an opponent than the club which depends upon one star to turn in the victories.

The election day game with West Virginia may cause Fordham to go down to defeat before Boston College one week from Saturday at Fenway Park.

Joe McKenney's boys have a comparatively easy game scheduled for this week with Manhattan College and should be in prime condition for Cav's boys, who will be stowed up by the powerful attack of the Mountaineers.

Unless Hal Boomn rounds into form, Milt McInnis, the West Roxbury boy, will be a left end for Dartmouth this week. Norm Manton is under observation for appendicitis at the Dick Hall House, which opens the way for the former Dean star to get his letter.

Apparently Fred Brice has his University of Maine team headed for another State championship. The light and dark blue have won so many titles since Brice assumed charge of football at Orono, that it has almost become a habit in all the years that Fred Brice has been at Maine, the State University has never put anything but a top notch team on the field.

With Princeton this week and then Iowa, Ohio State is going to see plenty of action during the next fortnight. The Buckeyes have won three Conference games, while Iowa has turned back Chicago and Minnesota.

The Ohio State-Iowa game will just about settle the Big Ten championship, and as the Tigers came will not be any pink tea affair, Iowa should have an edge on Wilce's boys.

Eddie Casey is developing some fine freshman talent to pass on to the Harvard varsity. Captain Wood at quarter is varsity timber while it will take some high-grade players to keep the left side of the 1933 line off the first team. Weyerdon, Finlayson and Record would receive a most cordial welcome from any coach in the country.

Captain Ellis of Tufts is a treat to watch in action. He has been outstanding at Tufts for three years and was a thorn in the side of Brown last week. Ellis' 43 yard run for touchdown was one of the finest individual feats seen in Providence in years.

GEORGETOWN HAS BATTLE ON SATURDAY

Coach Meehan of the New York University football team began immediate preparation yesterday afternoon at Ohio Field for the meeting with the Georgetown University eleven at the Yankee Stadium this Saturday.

The workout was not too severe and consisted of a signal and forward passing drill. Meehan announced himself as satisfied with the brilliant performances of his charges in their 47 to 6 victory over the Colgate University outfit on Saturday. No injuries resulted from the clash with the Maroon, and the full squad took part in the workout yesterday.

The contest this week-end will bring together two of the five undefeated and untied football teams of the East and it will also bring together the high scoring team and the fourth high scoring eleven of the country. It will be the only game on Saturday where two undefeated teams meet each other.

Georgetown has long been noted for its high-powered offense. So far this season in five games the Blue and Grey eleven has scored 218 points, while last year the Lou Little coached eleven tallied 271 points.

Baseball Pilots to Meet Friday

A meeting of all baseball managers of amateur and semi-professional teams will be held Friday evening at 7:45 in Room 123 Copley-Plaza Hotel, under the direction of Joe O'Gorman, president of the Eastern Protective Baseball League.

Baseball Night will be observed and Mr. O'Gorman cordially invites all managers of Greater Boston teams to be present.

HARVARD TRIES TO DEVELOP PASS GAME

Batchelder, Huguley, O'Connell and Pickard, and you have as pretty a list of forward pass tools as would fit into a passing kit.

Coach Horween had his eyes wide open as Dartmouth was executing its multiple passes on Saturday and there is a chance that a Dartmouth passing ploy will be used by Harvard in its coming encounters.

To what extent Harvard will use these new passing plays against Lehigh remains to be seen. With Sam Batchelder and Tommy Gilligan in the starting team B backfield, the Crimson has its best passing pair. Batchelder is the best heaver in college while Gilligan is an accurate receiver and is very clever at throwing short passes.

Coach Horween has been questioned regarding the report that he is going to use his second team against Lehigh. His only reply is that "No Harvard player will be away from Cambridge to see Yale or any other team next Saturday."

SUB MUST PLAY

Horween will send his subs against the Lehigh team on Saturday. Art French, Wally Harper and Dick O'Connell are hobbling to classes and have not reported to Horween's squad this week. It is very doubtful if any one of this trio will face Lehigh at all.

Hence the second team looks very good and the eleven which will represent Harvard on Saturday. This team has John Prior and Sam Burns, ends; Jo Polcari and Tom Alcock, tackles; Jack Parkinson and Ken Robinson, guards; Henry Gilden, center; with Elliott Putnam, Tommy Gilligan, Sam Batchelder and Art Huguley in the backfield.

Lehigh Has Three Sessions Before Harvard Game

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 31—After a day of rest enjoyed by varsity, practice at Lehigh University was resumed this afternoon for the Harvard game, with every player who took part in last Saturday's game here available.

Although the sessions of practice will be cut down to a mere three-hour one to the fact that the team will leave for Boston on Thursday night the coaches promise to crowd plenty of work into each.

Satisfied that they have a team strong on the defense against ground attacks, and also that a foundation of an offense has been established, the coaches will concentrate this week in polishing off the attack, correcting defects apparent in Saturday's game, and hope to have this department functioning with precision when the team meets Harvard, at Cambridge, on Saturday.

The Lehigh team has been slow in developing, a condition brought about by the many new players and their apparent inexperience. For weeks the coaches were forced to experiment in hopes of finding the right combinations for the respective departments and have now seemingly been able to determine definitely on the most promising of the players.

Who Will Christen No. Station Arena?

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

"WHAT'S in a name? Four Roses by any other name would not require a 'chaser.'"

Thus said one Will Shakespeare, literary friend of Gene Tunney, at one time.

But the business of finding a name for the new sports arena at the North Station is causing some of our readers to become violently agitated, or as we say in the vernacular, "all steamed up."

Calling the new North Station sports arena the "Boston Madison Square Garden" has aroused the loyal Bostonians to register their protest.

"Why do we have to copy New York?" asks one indignant reader of the American sport pages.

"Why?" we answer.

And there is no answer, except that the new North Station arena looks just like the Madison Square Garden in New York.

BUT will Boston, that gave baked beans to the world, in spite of the attempts of the Soviet Government to steal the credit, admit to the world that it cannot find a suitable name for one of the best sport arenas in the country?

Certainly not.

One of the readers has suggested that the new arena be called the "Hub Garden."

That's not a bad idea, since the new arena is in the Hub.

TO date, only three names have been suggested for the new North Station arena.

1—Boston a Madison Square Garden.

2—Loring Gardens, after the man who was responsible in a large measure for the building of it.

3—Hub Garden, from an unknown, but highly patriotic citizen.

Now we propose to allow all the readers of this paper to send in the name they believe will best fit the new North Station arena.

WE promise no rewards, but we shall number the list of names proposed by our readers to the management of the new arena, and, who knows, someone may win a lollypop, or something, if the name sent in is accepted.

Diamond Prizes at St. Joe's Bouts

The big "diamond show" of St. Josephs T. A. B., which will be staged in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin sq., on Saturday night is attracting the greatest number of entries ever recorded in a weekly tournament.

Diamond rings and diamond pins are to be given the winners and runners-up in the various classes, and apparently the young men who are tired of winning watches want to turn their hand towards the diamond market. Two heavyweights already have entered, while the smaller classes are rapidly filling up.

Bouts are to be held in the 115, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds and heavyweight classes, and all classes will be open to all comers. Entries may be filed with William H. Cuddy, readers of this paper to send in 733 Washington st., Room 218.

SAYS BUSINESS EAGER TO AID FARMERS

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP)—Business is standing by to assist in the stabilization of agriculture, William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, today told the Chicago Association of Commerce. The throes of depression in which some branches of farming finds itself are merely growing pains caused by the increasing efficiency and magnitude of modern production, he declared.

"It is as much the concern of business as of agriculture itself," he said, "that agriculture be prosperous. An awakening to the fact that those dollars which come from the creation of agricultural wealth are new dollars has established a big conception of the part of business men, and they now regard it not only as an obligation but a golden opportunity to aid in enhancing the purchasing power of these dollars.

"Something has happened to agriculture and to our manufactures," he said. "It is the working of a new industrial revolution. The truth is that many of the set-spots in American industry today are growing pains incident to an almost unbelievable increase in the efficiency of production. We cannot expect to progress as a nation without such growing pains."

DEATH PENALTY WILL BE ABOLISHED IN GERMANY

Berlin, Oct. 31 (INS)—The Reichstag judicial committee today decided to abolish the death penalty in Germany. The decision was taken in debate upon the new penal code. While the vote upon the question was a tie, it was decided to rescind the old law imposing the extreme penalty.

A compromise penalty of imprisonment and sterilization of the sterilization of the criminally inclined was rejected although this vote, like the other, was a tie.

HAUPTMANN'S SON SEEKS DIVORCE FROM PRINCESS

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Morgen Post said today that Benvenuto Hauptmann, son of Gerhart Hauptmann, poet and dramatist, was about to seek a divorce from Princess Hermine, princess of Schaumberg Lippe, whom he married on July 31.

The princess is a niece of the former Kaiser's sister, Princess Victoria, now the wife of Alexander Subkoff. Hauptmann's first marriage to an Englishwoman was also of short duration.

STAGE STARS TO APPEAR AT ORPHAN ASYLUM

Ninety orphan girls housed in St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum in Camden st., South End, will be entertained today by artists from the Metropolitan theater, under auspices of the Boston Evening American. This is one of a series of special entertainments given under the joint auspices of this newspaper and the Metropolitan theater to relieve the tedium of the daily routine in Greater Boston institutions.

ARREST AUTOIST AFTER CAR HITS "DUMMY" COP

After his car crashed into a silent policeman at Saratoga and Moore sts., East Boston, today, injuring himself and two other occupants, Charles W. Feeley of Saratoga st. was arrested on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Feeley, Mrs. Anne Mulligan of Wordsworth st. and Herson, Frederick, 24, were thrown into the street.

ARMED MAN IS SEIZED IN ROW OVER TAXI FARE

Frederick O. Goldsmith, who gave a California address, met an academic note with a dark eye taxicab driver early today without having the opportunity to display two best persuasive arguments, to wit, a fully loaded revolver and an equally well loaded blackjack.

Special Officers Adair and Foley of the Back Bay station, attracted by the loud discussion of the rag arm of a taxi meter, abruptly joined the early morning forum with the arrest of Goldsmith for drunkenness and subsequent search of his clothing at the station disclosed the dangerous weapons.

ARMED "RACKETEERS" ROB FIVE IN R. I. HOLDUP

Providence Oct. 30 (AP)—Six "racketeers" with drawn revolvers invaded the saloon of Joseph Serrachia on Providence st., Westcott, at midnight, lined four customers and the bartender in front of the rail and robbed them and the money drawer of about $100.

Within an hour after the holdup police arrested five men on a street car bound for Providence. The men were identified as members of the gang by William Smith, who was in charge of the saloon at the time of the robbery. The men gave their names as Peter Petrucci, 19, John Stone, Angelo Tucci, 18, Salvatore Sirarco, 21, Carmino Pandossi 19, and Albert Liberato, 23, all of Providence

QUITS HOSPITAL ALTHOUGH NAME IS ON DANGER LIST

Although her name was placed on the danger list when taken to the Boston City Hospital, Miss Lillian Galli, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Galli of 21 Middlesex st., South End, refused treatment and walked, unassisted, from the hospital.

The young woman drank a small quantity of poison by mistake and then collapsed. She was removed to the hospital by Patrolman Cyril Hoy of the East Dedham st. station who was on his way to report for duty. Physicians urged the girl not to leave the hospital, but she insisted on leaving against their advice.

SERGT. CRONIN OF REVERE IS MADE LIEUTENANT

Sergt. Cornelius F. Cronin, who has held that position in the Revere police department only since last October, was today promoted to lieutenant, having headed the list in the civil service examinations.

John P. Starkey and Dominick Church were promoted to sergeants.

BLUE BLOOD AND RED

by Robert Terry Shannon

Author of "The Taxi Dancer"

The Story of a "Good" Gunman and His Battles

CHAPTER 3.

WHEN the driver announced that he must turn off the main road, Eddie got out of the car and resumed walking. After a while it was borne upon him that it was senseless to continue the aimless wandering. The few houses along the way were bleak, ramshackle and tumbled down. Most of them, he observed, were occupied by negroes.

Before one gaunt and sagging structure standing in the center of an uncultivated field Eddie stopped. With speculative eye he estimated the probability of finding a place to stay—for the present, at least. In his pocket was a thin roll of bills. Later on he could look for work.

For the first time he noticed an automobile standing beside the road, half hidden by trees and bushes. Simultaneously, he saw a man come out of the front door of the house and stride down the path toward the car. Something in the walk of the man denoted danger—the choppy stride of pump legs, the swing of arms, the flush on his face.

Coming up to Eddie, he paused a moment before he got into the car. He was breathing rapidly and there was a little twitching of the eye.

"Can you beat it—I almost got shot in there! That's your Southern aristocracy for you."

His face was seamy and his hat over-brim looked Eddie up and down. What he saw was a trim youth with a natty suit, sadly rumpled and dust-stained. The city was stamped all over Eddie. Toward him, the angry man seemed to feel a sort of kinship.

"So you almost got shot, did you?" Eddie asked, nonchalantly.

The other snorted. "I ought to have that fellow in that house arrested," he declared. "Mister, I'm a dealer in antique furniture from Richmond and I was just trying to argue him into selling me some of the stuff he owns—but no! He'd rather live in poverty than sell one stick of that old furniture. I argued with him and he got mad when I told him he was a fool for living like a dog, when he could get five or six hundred dollars for his junk. The old idiot grabbed down a rifle off the wall and chased me out. I ought to have him pinched!" The man was now in his car and moving away.

Eddie looked at the bleak homestead and a curious feeling of sympathy moved inside him. After all, a man had a right to chase a pest out of his house with a gun, if the pest started an argument and got insulting. But at the same time, Eddie realized, it was no time for him to hang around an old gentleman who had his mind on shooting somebody.

Once again he started down the road, but there was a shout behind him. From the direction of the house an old negro came running and throwing his arms in the air.

"White man!" he called in a wailing voice. "Come help me quick, white gennulmun! Marse Penfield, he's had a stroke—Ah think he's gwine to die right now!"

Eddie halted as the words reached his ears.

"What's all the hurrah about?" he called out.

Almost exhausted, the negro reached the road.

"Marse Penfield has done got the apoplexy from gittin' excited. Dar's got to be help guven him right this minnit or he's a goner, shuah!"

At that moment the bewilderingly attractive girl on horseback came riding around a bend in the road. She drew up her mount as she beheld the excitement on the negro's face—she was going to stop—she was going to speak and Eddie was going to hear her voice.

Some latent instinct rose up instantly in Eddie's breast, and he pulled off his hat. The girl slid off her horse and came toward him, leading her animal by the bridal.

At close range she was even more purely exquisite than he had imagined; her body moved with elasticity and behind the flower-like quality of her face there was, remotely, a hint of courage and strength.

She scarcely gave him a glance, but spoke directly to the old negro. Her voice was as soft as the balmy Virginia air that surrounded them—an enchanting modulation of tone was rich and leisurely.

"What's the trouble, Uncle Tobe?"

The white kinky hair of the negro was a frizzle over his black face.

"Thank God, you is heah, Miss Maran. Marse Penfield is had a stroke and he dies right now, lessen I git help—"

The girl knotted the bridle rein around the fence post. For the first time she looked at Eddie.

"You come along, too," she said softly, without excitement.

"Certainly," said Eddie, with a sensed awkward feeling.

Now that he was standing close beside her he was overcome with the realization that the atmosphere around him had become, suddenly, rarified—that every time he breathed his heart beat faster. No girl on earth had ever affected him this way before.

The negro hurried on ahead of them toward the house.

"Hide?" I pass you down the road?" she asked him, with perfect poise.

For some unaccountable reason

PERFECT CASE IN "THRILL MURDERS"

HIS LIFE SNUFFED OUT "FOR FUN"

NEW DEATH LAID TO YOUTHS

Atlanta, Oct. 31 (INS)—A "perfect crime" has been built up against George Harsh and Richard Gallogly, slayer "thrill" murderers, prosecutors announced today.

The two college youths probably will go to trial Nov. 19.

Defense counsel intimated today they would seek separate trials for the youths of wealthy families on the theory that the state's plan to put Harsh on trial first is one they believe they have a good deal to gain against him. Harsh confessed he said to killing two store clerks during a series of holdups and implicated Gallogly.

Police said they made no attempt to connect Harsh with a daring daylight murder in Milwaukee, but some Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole said he would not question Harsh about it. Milwaukee police in Milwaukee until asked to do so by Milwaukee police.

Harsh was in Wisconsin at the time of the killing.

Prince of Wales to Wear Irish Colors in Race

London, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Daily Express said today that the Prince of Wales had promised to wear the Irish Free State tri-color in a horse race at Fl Dorel in Tanganyika, Africa.

El Dorel is a predominately Irish settlement, one of the citizens, Thomas O'Shea, who was a bosom friend of Parnell in Ireland in 1918, asked the prince if he would object to wearing the shamrock and tri-color in the race.

"Not at all; I will be delighted," the prince replied.

PARENTS GIVE HALLOWEEN BALL TO LYDIA ROTCH, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Louis XIV Ballroom at Hotel Somerset Decorated in Yellow and Black

THIS IS THE EVENING WHEN witches and pumpkins do their black and yellow best to transform the Hotel Somerset's Louis 14th ballroom exquisiteness into Halowe'en's primitive blaze for the large ball Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rotch give for Miss Lydia Rotch. So it behooves the debutantes to cast an appraising eye over her trousseau, still printing and crisp, and select some brilliantly tinted frock that even black and yellow cannot make dim by contrast. Something gorgeously bright, as maple leaves on autumn hillsides, will add immeasurably to the melange as debs and ballants fool a measure way into the early hours of tomorrow.

EVEN THUS EARLY IN THE season it is to be seen that Miss Rotch is by way of being a "success" as the debutantes measure that commodity. Firstly, she is a probationary Junior Leaguer, secondly, she is chosen for the Vincent Club and perchance, an opportunity to shine when that most exclusive of local feminine organizations puts on its next spring show. To be taken into the fold of the first is the aim of every debutante, and when Vincent Club preferment is here also, then is she admittedly quite within the inner circle as Boston's Mayfair acknowledges it. Of the dance, there is the usual preliminary ushers' dinner, and all the young set will be in evidence.

EVER SO KINDLY ARE BOSTON'S plutocratic philanthropists taking to the benefit path, especially that which leads to Symphony Hall for the evening of Nov. 2 and benefits Norfolk Neighborhood House and serves up a Lowell Thomas excursion into far and forbidden Central Asia. One might well suppose this the only benefit of the season, tickets are being snapped up with no mean relish. An advance sale is on that brings a gleam to every eye, the rapid fire disposal of tickets being such that Norfolk House will be amply fortified for its good works for many a moon. Mrs. Karl Adams and Miss Mary A. Bradlee, Mrs. David Cheever and Miss Anna Cutler, Miss Katharine Homans and Dudley L. Pickman, of the directing staff, are some of those whose eyes have the aforesaid gleam.

SOME DEBUTANTES CONSIDER the cup of bliss is running over if they are blessed with doting parents who fling wide the family purse and accomplish a brilliant coming out in Boston. In a position to count her lucky stars in double measure is the bud whose maternal parent hails from Baltimore and who made her début, as all first family debutantes do, at the scented periods, amid the splendors and exclusiveness of the "First Out on" Whit number did, that daughter must assemble at And so mother takes daughter back to Baltimore, that the outcry may be made thus plausibly at the super-smart "Bachelors'"

A COMING HOME FROM HALF round the world would not be a single mile too long were such an occasion as the Baltimore Cotillon at journey's end. Miss Dorothea Ware and Miss Helen Nichols think Boston to Baltimore the most trifling of distances, therefore, since they are being taken down to come out as their mothers did. Miss Nichols is a daughter of the dolly T. Gilman Nichols and Miss Ware is a daughter of Mrs. Charlotte Ware, and pleasant things done for them here will supplement, though not overshadow, the Cotillon's utter brilliance and éclat. Baltimore's manner of presenting her buds has much to recommend it, if the bunch and frontispiece of the affair are transcendent, and as for exclusiveness, it is that to the nth degree.

Mrs. Roger Warner — Miss Ellen Potter

CHATTING AT BOSTON'S EXCLUSIVE CLUB, THE CHILTON

DOWN THE GANGPLANK OF the liner Paris come the Frederick Gilsbee Whitwells—rich in good news to their friends here in town. Once more on home soil they are expected at their Marlboro street residence shortly. Very much at home in London and Paris are the Whitwells, who are persona grata with the noblesse of the continent and the elite of London society, never so if not more at the right hand of Royalty as a Whitwell prerogative all of which renders long and protracted residence abroad extremely pleasant to this popular couple.

A PARIS ADDRESS LOCATED these cosmopolites at the Hotel d'Iena for such periods as were devoted to life in the French capital. Of course, there were flittings southward with the seasons, and the cross-channel journey to be enjoyed now and again, especially when the London season was at its gayest or friends had taken "a shooting" in the North, and society migrated thither to do a house party round. Somewhere and sometime during her residence abroad Mrs. Whitwell acquired the most becoming of "bobs," and since her jewels always are exquisite and her gowns breathe "Paris" in every subtle fold she catches the eye, and holds it in admiration, in every assemblage.

SHIPMATES WITH THE WHITwells on the Paris is La Argentina, toast of Continental beaux and the very starry star Boston's private Junior League leaders have corraled for the League's annual benefit. This Spanish dancer, who has delighted and excited even Paris, should be an enormous attraction here, sufficient to fill Junior League coffers deep and full with a supply of shekels against many a philanthropy to come. Of course the Leaguers will rally to its standard every maid and matron member, and La Argentina's colorful charm will make radiant even a Symphony Hall, so chaste an interior of dullish gray unenlivened even by its bits of gold.

Betty Alden

FOOD FIRST AT NEW PRAYER MEETINGS

Asserting that the day of the old-fashioned prayer meeting is passed if gone, as the old horse and buggy, the Rev. William L. Stidger, D. D., of the Copley Methodist Episcopal Church instituted today a weekly "food, faith and fellowship club" at his church.

"The new psychology demands a new type of mid-week meeting," he said in making his announcement.

DINNER FIRST

"It is like putting new wine into old bottles to expect students and young people of today to attend the old type of Wednesday evening meeting. In order to meet the new need we have instituted what we will call food, faith and fellowship night.'

"We have dinner together from 6 to 7, serving it for a nominal fee of 40 cents. Then we have a sanctuary service from 7 to 8, and an hour from 8 to 9 of social fellowship in the church parlors. This is not really so revolutionary or so new as it may seem, for it is modeled after the way Jesus Himself dealt with the people of his day.

"First, he fed them and cured their bodies. Then He preached to them. Then He ate with them, and fellowshiped with them. We are simply carrying out His program in this new venture.

POLITICAL ADDRESS.

"On Wednesday evening I shall continue the series of pre-election sermon addresses on the theme 'Calvin Coolidge, and Al Smith—a Comparison and a Contrast.'

"It was necessary to postpone this Sunday morning address by reason of our Masonic service. On next Sunday the last of the series will be given on Herbert Hoover and Al Smith—a Comparison and a Contrast."

BALTIMORE BOY WINNER IN 'OUR GANG' CONTEST

The winner of the International "Our Gang" contest was announced today from New York as Norman Chaney, 12, of Baltimore, Md. Furthermore, who played "Fatty" in the Baltimore "Our Gang" picture.

Young Chaney, an accomplished comedian with an unusual sympathy for "hot dogs," was picked out of approximately 10,000 contestants by Hal Roach, director of the "Our Gang" comedies at Hollywood.

The boy weighs 114 pounds, is three feet tall and is in the fifth grade at school.

Through his victory in the contest conducted by Loew theaters and the Hearst papers, he wins a three-months' contract with Hal Roach to appear with the real "Our Gang" at a salary of $100 a week plus all expenses to and from Hollywood for himself and his mother.

John Leonard Tarbox, 10, of 24 Cleveland st., Gloucester, was the "Fatty" selected at Loew's Orpheum Theater in the Hub during the New England eliminations.

The other duplicates of the "Our Gang" members selected here were Paul B. Miller, 9, of 12 Castlegate rd., Roxbury, as "Freckles"; Henry A. Larson, 4, of 17 Kent st., Brookline, as "Spanky"; Dorothy Jo Wolfe, 6, of 68 Whitten st., Dorchester, as "Jean Darling"; Marion Campbell, 4, of 472 Willow st., Manchester, N. H., as "Mary Ann"; and Kenneth Jenkins, 4, of 78 Kendall st., Roxbury, as "Farina."

RICHARD HUDNUT, FORMER PERFUME MAKER, DEAD

Nice, France, Oct. 31 (AP)—Richard Hudnut, former New York druggist, who became a millionaire through the manufacture of perfume, is dead at Chauteau Juan at Juan les Pins, near Nice.

Mr. Hudnut owned a villa there. He died of heart failure, aged 64. His widow is the mother by a former marriage of Winifred Shaughnessy Hudnut, known on the stage as Natacha Rambova, who was the second wife of the late Rudolph Valentino.

Splendid Recipe To Stop A Cough That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, you can easily be sure is here. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It is no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this concentrated remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is slightly laxative, and the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, also through the system, throws off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu" are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

AMERICAN'S POLITICAL FORUM

Lauds Hoover on Record

By John Richardson

Hoover Pre-Convention Manager in Massachusetts

SAID a leading Massachusetts authority in our headquarters this week: "When Governor Smith opened his campaign, I was prepared to regard him as a very able man. I thought he would give to the country a constructive program, from his point of view, and would discuss the issues with some skill. although I was ready to make allowance for his unfamiliarity with many national questions. As a matter of fact, the Democratic candidate has not done so. His recent speeches have consisted largely of abuse of the Republican party and an effort to belittle the work of men like Coolidge, Mellon and Hoover, which the whole country has regarded at the best job of governmental administration in many years."

That is a very fair reflex of the reaction of thinking men to the campaign the Democratic candidate is making, not only in general but more particularly in this State.

Governor Smith has had his own crowd shouting for him in a frenzy of delight over his wisecracks, but he has not advanced one sincere, solid reason to show how either employer or employed would be one dollar better off in consequence of his election.

And the campaign 's getting right down where it belongs; to the issue of national prosperity. The answer of the country is with Herbert Hoover.

CLAIMS VICTORY

The real question is whether Americans who do their own thinking will be outnumbered by others who let a Tammany politician do it for them. We in Massachusetts believe that they will not; that the candidate who has made a turnabout on the tariff which, as Senator Simmons says, would leave his party very sadly embarrassed should any chance take him into the White House, can not win over one of the most accomplished economists and administrators the world has ever seen.

It is the fashion of the opposition, in the closing days of the campaign, to make out that Massachusetts, the home of the President and the state of some of the most illustrious statesmen that have directed national affairs, will fall below the level of the rest of the country next Tuesday, and give its vote to a candidate and a party with which it has nothing in common, for it is conceded that the vote for Governor Smith, if it is not equally well-known in himself, in view of the milling crowds that have greeted him, that the ticket of Hoover and Curtis will be elected.

The Democratic candidate for governor has made the remarkable statement that nothing has thrown such a spasm into the Republican management as the defection of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

He evidently does not know that the bolt of Norris has been discounted ever since the campaign opened, that Norris can get votes for him self but that he cannot for anyone else, and that even the editors of the Democratic newspapers of Nebraska say privately that they expect to see Hoover and Curtis carry the State.

REFUSES TITLE

Norris never has been Republican except in name. He is a pure Socialist and for 18 years has used the Republican party only to ride in on Republican votes. When offered a title by the king of Belgium, replied: "The only title I wish is that of 'friend of the Belgian people'" who again, when a foreign title was offered before him by British diplomats, said "I appreciate the compliments they convey, but I do all I can to help them, but I'll be damned if I will give up my title and my America to war for any other title on earth."

Our opponents lay stress on the "humanity" of Governor Smith. It is not denied, but is it demonstrated by any such accomplishments as when, confronted with 600,000 cases of typhus and typhoid epidemic in Poland, Mr. Hoover saved from the hard pressed Allied and enemy military and Spring Offensive stores which saved the great bulk of them?

ASSAILS SLURS

Is Smith a better friend of children than the man who headed the relief work for children whose whole homes, fortunes and health underwent starvation, with its inevitable sequel of rickets and tuberculosis, and raised $50,000,000 for their relief from Congress and $23,000,000 more from the charitable men and women of America?

The wants of 3,500 000 children were relieved by the superhuman efforts of Mr. Hoover in Poland, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria and Jugoslavia, but he was not "booed" for what he had done.

He is today a sainted figure among these people—this man whom Democratic audiences are systematically insulting.

Of the ten and half fold, for 12,000,000 men, women and children were fed under his ministrations in Belgium from the 20,000 feeding stations he established in sixty days; we saved for it the 14,000 hospitals he equipped.

The Democratic candidate has boasted in the past that he was his campaigns in their closing days. Then it had become time to answer him, but the answers to the slurs against the Republican candidate for President which have distinguished this campaign were answered while the Democratic candidate was only Speaker of the New York Assembly.

GIVES REASONS

Why is it that all this degenerate campaigning has been futile to break the hold Mr. Hoover has on the people? Why is it that, except in every State in the Union a volunteer organization has been formed, composed of men and women of both political parties, who have carried the name and fame of Hoover into every hamlet and who constitute the main strength of his organization today?

It is because, in his service as Food Administrator of the United States Mr. Hoover put these people face to face, worked with them and directed and inspired them; because, when the war was over and the great food administration was disbanded, every person that had been engaged in the work regarded Hoover was his enthusiastic friend and admirer; because he had demonstrated to them, as already to the authorities and the people of Europe, that here was one of the greatest organizers and administrators the country ever knew, and still with the sincerity to make and retain friendships and to win the personal loyalty of those he served with him, until they would render him any service in their power.

Governor Smith is a man at whom Governor Smith sneers and he addresses a jeer to the executive also of the Republican and the Democratic candidate for President of the United States.

SEN. CURTIS SPEAKS AT SIOUX FALLS TONIGHT

En Route With Senator Curtis to Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 31 (AP)—On a second march through the agricultural Northwest, Senator Curtis is talking farm relief and tariff protection, pleading his party to put agriculture on an equity with existing industries. He speaks tonight at Sioux Falls.

At Eau Claire, Wis., the Senator asserted that the Democratic party through President Wilson, "established farm relief America was the victors of the emergency tariff act and the bill extending the life of the War Finance Corporation.

Vote Plea for Democrats

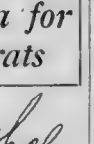
By Chas H. Cole

Democratic Candidate for Governor of Massachusetts

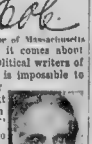
I AM asked to explain how it comes about that while the foremost political writers of the country maintain that it is impossible to forecast with any degree of certainty the outcome of next Tuesday's presidential election the "betting commissioners" of Wall Street continue to quote odds of 3½ on Hoover to 1 on Smith.

Frankly, the problem is beyond me. I wonder!

I have a notion that the man who starts out today with $1000 to wager on Governor Smith will find some difficulty in getting $3500 against it. And I am even more positive that by the end of the present week even the "quoted" odds will be shortened.



Atty. John Richardson



Gov. Chas H. Cole

Wall Street Betting 5 to 1 Hoover Will Be Elected

New York, Oct. 31—Herbert Hoover remained a 5 to 1 shot today, according to wagers being made on the floor of the Stock Exchange on the outcome of the presidential election. However, plenty of odds are being taken up, it was declared, a betting commissioner stating that two bets at $5000 against $25,000 and $6000 against $30,000 have been made.

It may be that Wall Street is rich in expert dopesters, but it certainly is to be noticed that this has been a hard year on the "experts."

Turney was "all through," according to the experts, the "dough" boys were ahead for the "passing" for R. Layton was among the experts—recently the Dartmouth eleven was going to have things its own way—but it didn't.

MAKES SUGGESTION

In my opinion anyone who seriously offers 2½ to 1 on Hoover the Presidential Stakes is a class with the gentlemen who backed Dempsey, St. Louis and Dartmouth, at long odds. I believe 28 will continue to be a good year for the "short-ender."

But I do not believe in betting on political campaigns or other contests. It gives the young man with more money than he needs at the moment is to find his way to the nearest savings bank with it. DON'T be a gambler. Don't fall prey to the craze for "easy" money. In the first place it is not easy at all. More often than otherwise it turns out to be a curse to the winner and to all who are near and dear to him.

If any man of prospective make-up has more money than he knows what to do with—there MAY be a progressive or two in this happy condition—and if he wished ardently for Dr. Coues or Z Smith, Walsh, Cole and the entire ticket, his contribution will be gladly received and acknowledged by the Democratic State Committee.

My own bet is on Hoover. Last week's great New England demonstrations in honor of Governor Smith may be a surprise to Smith enthusiasts, but it is a feeling that it is "all over but the shouting."

It is NOT all over but the shouting.

It IS all over but the VOTING.

The immediate and the lasting effect of Governor Smith's meeting is to frighten the opposition.

With unlimited funds at their command, the G. O. P. organization in this State—and in Rhode Island and New Hampshire as well—will carry to the polls next Tuesday every last possible lover vote whose attending physician will permit him to be lifted from his bed.

GIVES PLATFORM

Listen, and take warning:

Shop committees composed entirely of Democrats are active in every industrial center. Fifty-six shop committees are working in the textile industry 27 in the boot and shoe industry; 33 in miscellaneous industries and 15 in manufactories. Other industries are being rapidly added.

Friday night's Republican torchlight parade of 30,000 marchers in 20 divisions—from Barre, Clinton, Brookline, Cambridge, Chatham, Quincy, Lynn, Norwood, Wellesley and all over—will further remind you that it is NOT "all over but the shouting."

This Republican parade will 4½ as a demonstration of strength Boston may well be grateful for it. If it lifts the drooping spirits of the G. O. P. in this vicinity, as it is calculated to do, it will at the same time inspire every Republican worker and every Progressive the necessity for getting out the vote.

I make claim to no knowledge of political conditions elsewhere in the country, but I know that if the liberal and progressive vote of Massachusetts goes to the voting places next Tuesday not alone Smith and Walsh and Cole, but the entire Democratic ticket will go down in Commonwealth.

I hope the total vote will be the largest ever cast, because I firmly believe that in Massachusetts a majority of the voters subscribe to my own political beliefs.

ASKS SUPPORT

I believe in the principle of collective bargaining, and in doing away with the abuse of injunctions.

I believe in the direct primary.

I favor annual sessions of the Legislature, keeping the people in touch from week to week with representatives.

I favor so amending the Workmen's Compensation act as to provide life compensation for permanently total disability.

I am in favor of more State parks.

I favor wider highways, for the safety of life and limb as well as for better transportation facilities for merchant, farmer and manufacturer.

I believe in Old Age Pensions, a question which confronts us because of the practice of certain great industrial concerns, which look upon the employe of 50 as an "worn out,"

HARVARD SMITH BOYS CLASH AT HUGHES RALLY

Worcester, Oct. 31—Roughly handled by an overflow crowd from the Charles E. Hughes Republican rally, four Harvard students, members of the "Brown Derby Brigade," were rescued by police.

The undergraduates—J. J. Roche, H. D. Lockard, J. V. Hardiman and William Mahady—are said to be a group of Harvard men who campaign for the Democratic ticket in the presidential season.

They launched their rig in Main st., but several fist fights ensued, and all four students were forced out of the rig and one of them had come away from the hall meeting to see what the excitement was all about.

Police showed their way to the speakers and surrounded them. Five students, unknown to Lieut. Ralph Agnel to save their brown derbies, took the advice of the authorities and departed for Boston by auto.

Ask Cuba to Hold Ship

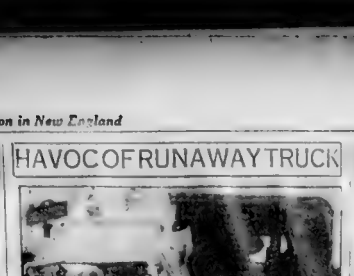
Havana, Oct. 31 (AP)—Formal requests were made to the Cuban government today by Chester Davis, an agent for Col. Edward A. Deeds, asking that the schooner Ilonia of Honduras register, which is reported engaged in rum-running. The Ilonia put into port here because of bad weather.

Smith Is "Fit" for Whirlwind Finish of Campaign

New York, Oct. 31 (INS)—Despite the fact that he has waged one of the most strenuous presidential campaigns of recent years, Governor Smith today is in excellent health.

By rightly following the rule he laid down in his state campaigns—never to speak in the open air—the Governor's voice is in good shape for the closing days of the campaign.

HAVOC OF RUNAWAY TRUCK



DRIVERLESS, IT ROLLS DOWN HILL

Soon after hundreds of school children had passed through Dudley st., Roxbury, today, a five-ton coal truck ran wild, rolled down a hill and smashed a light pole at Kenilworth st. The driver, George H. Haines, tried in vain to catch the vehicle. No one was injured.

SOVIET WOMEN IN BREAD LINE

London, Oct. 31 (1928) Soviet Russia is in the throes of a famine which is reaching serious proportions, according to reports from Helsingfors and it as received by Exchange Telegraph Company here today.

Mounted police are patrolling Moscow, and disquieting near-violence, whose basis openly deplores the government, the Helsingfors report stated. Foreign legations in Moscow are perturbed over the seriousness of the situation, although some are disposed to welcome it because it affords them a legitimate reason for leaving.

In Leningrad similar scenes were enacted, according to the Finn report. Over 70 women and children, after waiting on a bread line all night, were given loaves of sugared, they used the apples to bombard the windows of food stores and threatened to loot the food distributors. A large number were arrested and later released.

"STAR AUTO LAW BREAKER" GETS 3 FINES AND TERM

"You have the worst record as an automobile offender that I've ever seen in this court," Judge Dowd told John A. Crossley, arraigned today on four charges of automobile law violation. Crossley was fined $5 for driving after his license had been revoked, $10 for failing to stop after an accident, $10 for operating an auto without a license and was given six months for operating with an illegible policy. He appealed and was held in $500.

LANSING FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP)—Funeral services for Robert Lansing, former secretary of state will be held at his home, 1212 16th st., Washington, at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Interment will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Watertown, N. Y., the following day.

A special funeral car will be attached to a regular train for the trip to Watertown, which will begin immediately after the funeral service.

INVENTORY OF ELY ESTATE $1,227,000

An estate of $1,227,033.71, all in personal property, was left by Charles F. Ely, treasurer and manager of the Tremont Manufacturing Company of Roxbury, it was revealed today by filing of an inventory in Suffolk registry of probate. The deceased owned considerable stock in the com, ny and bonds of many other corporations.

UTILITY INQUIRY TO BE LAUNGHED ON NOV. 14

The State Department of Public Utilities announced today that in conformity with a resolve passed by the Legislature, it will start to investigation on regulation and supervision of gas and electric light companies along the lines proposed by Governor Fuller, on Wednesday, November 14.

Yale News Is Accused of Favoring the G. O. P.

New Haven, Oct. 31 (AP)—The tempest in the Yale teapot has become a tempest in the editorial rooms of the Yale Daily News.

Today's issue of the "oldest college daily" carries three communications from associate editors in which the News and individuals connected with it are arraigned for the alleged "playing up" of non-college Republican news and the "playing down" of Democratic news.

The paper also carries a reply to the communication from Fred Albert Simmons, Jr., of Boston, managing editor, the year interesting part of which is postscript in which he says that "the managing editor of the News doesn't give a damn who gets elected and has 6 old cronies to vote, anyhow."

The communications are from Ralph P. Paine, Jr., of Durham, N. H., a junior member of the editorial board; James T. Patterson, Jr., of Milford, and "H. M. G., Jr., '30," who is H. M. Gallup, Jr., of Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Paine in his letter says "sneering comment of L. H. N. on Democratic ballyhoo received and duly noted." The chairman of the News in Lloyd Hilton Smith of Merion, Pa., and the vice-chairman is Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh, Pa., son of Andrew Mellon.

Find Evidence of Race Extinct for 700 Years

Minneapolis, Oct. 31 (AP)—Evidence of the history of a race which lived here 700 years ago, when the New Mexico cemeteries sprang, and which apparently vanished about 700 years ago, was given by Dr. Albert F. Jenks, chairman of the department of anthropology at the University of Minnesota in a lecture at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

Dr. Jenks told of the finding of beautiful pieces of pottery of strange designs of stone and adobe houses, built one layer upon another, of fireplaces built in the floors of houses and of peculiar burial customs.

Nearly all of the pottery found in the excavations was made, Dr. Jenks said, by the women.

"That is, each one had a soul hole broken into its bottom before being buried with a dead person so that the spirit of the vessel supposedly the favorite of the person with whom it was buried might leave the vessel at the same time that the dead person's spirit left his body."

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE: GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how.

The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—don't. Instead, take a little cascara. That's not a violent drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. It is the fact the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascarina is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength.

Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after taking. Instead of being clogged worse than ever, the bowels act of their own accord. You may keep [illegible] cascara several times in succession regularly. But the bowels [illegible] you NEVER [illegible] you may increase the amount.

Cascara's ideal form is Cascarets. Cascarets just please and [illegible] and won't hurt them at [illegible] drugstore you ask.

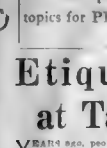
Etiquette at Table

YEARS ago, people used to pooh-pooh at the etiquette business, but it is interesting to know that a set on book of etiquette has just been issued by the Harvard Press.



Martha Lee Bedwell

A very clever man has said: "Etiquette is the art of knowing how to walk, to dance and in one's own way to touch the best circles without upsetting anything. It is the science of feeling perfectly at ease in the presence of three or more forks. It is that which reveals whether you had a good training or not, whether there is ground for suspicion that your father kept his hat on at the dinner table."

Formal dinners—Heaven be praised—are sufficiently few and far between in our lives and most of us know forks by hearsay rather than by sight. Personally I wish there'd be a set of them with every fork when more than one is laid at my plate.

To tell the truth, I think most of us abhor one of these "watchful waiting dinners — you know the kind when you look out the tail of your eye to see what fork your neighbor is using rather than going ahead at your own rate.

But while there are excuses for those of us who have been raised in simple fashion under a "minimum fork quota" and make "faux pases" when entirely surrounded by strange foods and concoutrements, there are certain fundamentals of table manners that should be ware and word of our own lives, and a foundation of our ritual for bringing up the children.

Like other manners, table manners are based on decent consideration for other neighbors. Even in the nursery children should be trained to carefully wipe their mouths before drinking, not spill food or reach greedily for dishes or using forks like shovels.

It is surely not necessary to touch on the offenses of loud noises in chewing and swallowing, and putting as much as possible of one's soup spoon in one's mouth and resting the bowl and fork against the sides of the plate.

"In my time," as grandmother used to say, leaning forward across the table was one of the cardinal sins, but this is no longer frowned upon. My own special weakness is a deeply rooted desire to break my cracker into my soup. I am sure it is much more delicious than taking soup separately and trying to eat pieces of cracker so dry that there is great danger of the crackers flying out of your ears when you swallow, but I am quite aware that this is suitable only for the nursery or the strictest family privacy.

Bone picking is beyond the pale, too, except in the bosom of a forgiving family.

We may enjoy eating butter with our bread rather than bread and butter, but don't generously butter a whole slab of bread at once. You can disguise the amount of butter you are consuming by breaking your bread in small pieces and buttering each mouthful individually.

Sometimes we acquire annoying habits quite unconsciously, such as tapping on the table or making patterns on the cloth. These, with the rather common failing of taking with fork and spoon in mid air.

First, of course, we must be confident of our own good table manners before attempting to train the little folks. I am not in favor of making the kiddies' lives a great, big effort," but I do know that graceful table manners will smooth their social pathways all the rest of their lives. Here are a few of the rudiments:

Teach the child to sit straight on its chair; to take small mouthfuls, to eat slowly, to chew with mouth shut and keep their pieces at the (illegible) to take up (illegible) and, especially, to refrain from talking (illegible) to unfold it in a wad, but unfold it partially and spread out flat over the knees. Cups and glasses must not be drained at a gulp.

Knives are for cutting purposes only, and are held in the right hand only as long as it is being used.

The fork, prongs down, is held in the left hand. When (illegible) has been cut to keep you supplied for a few mouthfuls, the knife must be laid down on the edge of the plate and the fork changed to the right hand. Hold it like a pencil, rather than a shovel.

While everyone likes to see children happy, noisy behavior at the table should not be permitted. Have not you seen tables where Father and Mother could scarcely get in a word between the chattering and horseplay of the little folks?

I don't mean that they should feel painfully suppressed, but it is hard to overcome habits indulged in every day at home and good manners are really the great divide between the guests who are frequently invited to the homes of the particular and those whose first visit is their last.

No lets resolve to carefully consider the mote in our own eye and not be so forceful for the beam of (illegible) brother.

Whirling comets of pink and blue organdie are applied by Madame Lanvin on a sheer white organdie background. The workmanship of this gown is exquisite, as is the rule of this house. Wide, circular skirts flare in ample curves. The edge of the skirt shows the graduated thickness of the muslin and the bodice is close fitting. The whole shows organdie at its daintiest.

Fads and Fancies

Fanning itself into a flame, a stunning fan is made up in vivid red velvet, to accompany a frock of the same material. The sticks are of red shell, and the whole affair measures about 18 inches in length.

Dark but not depressing are two leading shades for fall footwear. Bottle green and burgundy red are acclaimed as favorites on all sides. The tailored all-on pump in suede, trimmed with perforations and a small bow is an excellent model.

Rather a recent racket for evening coats is the depicting of landscapes as a form of decoration. One evening coat of velvet has a design of cut velvet which displays a night scene on the water in Venice. Cut on simple straight lines, the white fur collar is the only other trimming.

Eleanor Griffith Forsakes Stage for Sound Films

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1928, by Louella Parsons.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31—Eleanor Griffith, comely young Broadway stage actress, is headed for Hollywood to play the feminine lead in "The Night Stick" when she sails off The Chief, Friday morning she will be rushed to the United Artist studios for the picture. The selection of Miss Griffith, star of "The Spider," removes every vestige of doubt that she will make the best possible impression.

I'll tell you why I express myself so boldly. I happen to know that Richard Arlen, director of "The Night Stick," has interviewed dozens of our Hollywood girls and read them every line the question of voice entered into the question. He wanted a leading lady who could match Lester Murray in delivering spoken lines. Hence the call to New York. Pat O'Malley, who crashed Broadway when the talkies threatened Hollywood, is returning to play a part, and Mal Black, who did much emoting in a recent Hollywood stage play is likewise in the cast. "Cohen."

All these folk better be good in the movies as now as the talkies become the rule in making two versions, one without noise and one with talk.

MARY DUNCAN, whose speech at the Fox dedication ceremony Sunday proved that there is one actress who can face a mob of people and not talk in a high pitched, unnatural voice, is to have her first talkie. Winfield Sheehan is making plans to make this talkie a knockout. It's "Through Different Eyes," the play by Manon Gropper.

Gropper is on the Fox lot writing dialogue of his own stage play. So far a director has not been chosen. Mount Wash is revealed will not be divorced, but he is still separating. Frank Borzage, another Fox director, is nursing a nearly fractured nauil, received while he was playing polo. What a the matter with these Fox directors!

SALLY EILERS and her discoverer, Mr. Mack Sennett, are soon to a parting of the ways. Sally wants to free lance. I wouldn't be surprised to hear that Mary Kenyon the actor's wife (illegible) suddenly decided to spread his wings and try some other studio.

Sally, since her engagement to William Hawks, has become very grown-up. Now that she is marrying into a family whose members Mary Aloof for a sister-in-law and Kenneth and Howard Hawks for brothers-in-law, you cannot blame her for wanting to get the best out of her career.

NOVEMBER 24 is set as the wedding date of Reginald Denny and Isabel Steifel, otherwise known as Betty Lee. Denny's romance with his leading lady, ago anywhere from nineteen to twenty-four, has been one of Hollywood's love stories.

A year or two ago Denny was married, and he is the father of a little girl. His wife divorced him on the ground that he spent more time in the air than on terra firma. He was a big on Epinl. Anyway after his divorce he did not spend so much time in the clouds for he and the girl who is to become Mrs. Denny are seen at many social affairs. Love is grand, is it not?

TWO of our good friends now in New York have been engaged by F. B. O. Frances Agnew will make the adaptation and continuity for Stepping High,' F. B. O.'s first all dialogue and sound picture. Robert Kane, who went to New York some months ago, will do the directing.

Robert Kane by the bye has had one of the most meteoric careers in the movies. First he was associated with Paramount, then with First National, and then he made movies on his own. Some of them were pretty good, others terrible but undismayed, he is now working for F. B. O., and perhaps luck will be with him, and he will make a good picture. We hope so.

WILLARD MACK, in the future, may want to leave New York before his stage plays open. It may be a good omen. He didn't have a word to say to him New York received "The Common Sin" his latest stage effusion, until he reached Padre City, when a wire came bidding for the motion picture rights.

Then Mr. Mack knew it must have gone over for the pictures were after it for a talkie. Talk about successful authors these days, the man who can write a good play is in better standing than ever before. For he is just sure to sell his play to the movies and get a mighty good price for it.

A WARM welcome was given to Maurice Chevalier by his Hollywood admirers and co-workers at a luncheon given in his honor. Chevalier is to Paris what Al Jolson is to New York. He is fortunate in having Harry D'Arrast for his director.

For smart, sophisticated French farce, Harry D'Arrast stands at the head. Besides, Monsieur Chevalier comes from Paris and they ought to get along beautifully together.

The Dog's Cold Nose

By LUCY LOWELL

WHEN you're reading your paper of an evening, and there's a pair of cold wet nose and a timid, gentle little nuzzling at your hand, has it ever occurred to you to wonder why your dog's nose is cold?

There is a sweet little old story told about that—about why the dog's nose is always cold. Only a fable, of course, but, like many fables, one with a grain of truth in it.

Long, long ago, the story goes, when Noah sailed his ark upon the waters which covered the earth, the one real creature in all the (illegible) menagerie was the ancestor of the small fellow who nuzzles you away from your newspaper at night. What breed of dog he was is not explained whether Collie or Airedale, Setter or Great Dane.

But he raced up and down, 'round and 'round, getting into all sorts of mischief and out again, as dogs will, and endearing himself to everybody, as dogs also will.

And one day, when he had scampered down into the hold—if arcs have holds—he discovered a terrible thing. Some way or other a tiny opening had worked through the side of the great vessel—at least it had been tiny, but now it was growing larger—and the water was beginning to seep in.

Now, the dog regarded himself as the protector of all the lives aboard and he knew something would have to be done immediately. He could not go for help, for by the time he made one of the humans understand and return with him the trouble would have been beyond control.

Of course, he danced about and barked a great deal, for no doubt he was frightened. But in the end he settled the matter by thrusting his nose through the hole—it very effectively stopped the opening and kept the water out and all the rest of the trip, or until the water had sunk so low that he could leave his post, the dog stood there with his nose poked through the side of the ark.

And all the waters which washed over his nose naturally made it very cold and very wet. And so it remains cold and wet to this day.

Only a fable, as I said before, yet with its grain of truth—the truth of your dog's loyalty and his love for you.

When Parents Object to Girl's Fiancee

By Beatrice Fairfax

An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

I AM sometimes asked by a correspondent what my opinion is of her parents, because they object to her friends, her sweetheart, or still more disturbing, to her fiance. In many cases it is her obvious hope that I will side with her against her parents. But this very seldom happens!

My experience is that parents are seldom all wrong. In nearly every case they are actuated by love of their child. Their mature judgment and desire to protect her from all harm, prompts to give weight and wisdom to their decisions. Of course, now and then, it happens that parents are selfish and use their children as pawns in the game of social ambition or money making. More often parents resent, for a time, and more or less mildly, a suitor for their daughter's hand, not from any sound objection to the young man in question, but because it is hard to get used to the idea of losing daughter and no man seems quite good enough for her.

Vague, fleeting objections of this nature soon give way, however, before the parents' sincere desire to see their daughter happily married.

Ann "anxiously awaits" my answer to her letter about a young man she loves and another young man whom her parents prefer as a beau for her.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a young girl, and for the past five months I have been keeping steady company with a young man. This young man has treated me and mannered me like he does his own mother. His circle of friends is educated and refined, and they are always glad to do anything for him and me. He is liked by everyone. The drawback is that he stammers a little when he speaks. But his friends do not mind that.

"My parents want me to go out with another young man, who is a very good talker. Every time he comes to our home he talks with my parents a lot. He has lots of money, while the first young man is just starting in business, being a business school graduate. Every time I go out with the second young man I do not enjoy myself. He is not as refined or gentlemanly as the first. He has not as many friends, either, and those he has are not over anxious to associate with him.

"Now I love the first young man and he loves me. I am sure he is sincere, because he is liked by his friends 'dmiling, Square Harry.' Would you advise me to go with the first young man—the one I love? Or shall I go with the young man my parents admire? He has plenty of money, while as to the first one, I must take my chance on his working up. I will anxiously await your answer.

"ANN."

Why don't you keep both young men for friends, Ann?

Has it ever occurred to you, that would be a simple, friendly way out of the difficulty? It is not necessary to be in love with all your friends. Like them for the good they express.

Naturally, you will be a little more encouraging to the young man you like the better of the two. But you can't very well become engaged to him, can you, until he gets started in business and is able to support a home and wife?

You need not pretend to the young man your parents prefer that you are in love with him. Offer him friendly companionship if he wishes to accept it on your terms, keep him for one of your many friends—for I am sure you have many!

Just the fact that he is at present working for a small salary need as these two? Might you not in this way meet one later on who will eclipse either of the two admirers who are now attentive—one whom you will love best and to whom your parents will not object.

Meantime, go on being friends with both young men, un—that is my suggestion! When Mr. Right proves his earnestness and and wins your friendship and love, your parents' objections will melt, away, I fancy! Wait awhile and see!

TIGER LOVE by EUSTACE HALE BALL

The Amazing Story of the Love of a Charming Dancer

CHAPTER 30

ONCE more the faithful little Hindu caught at his master's elbow, this time with a desperation which drew upon him a fierce, swift look of diabolical irritation.

"Let go, or I'll kick you out of the car!" howled the American.

With a sudden jolt, learned long ago upon a football field, Meredith suddenly landed a blow in the little man's stomach which brought forth a shriek in a crackling falsetto which brought a grim smile to the white man's set features.

Far ahead, through eyes half-closed in the agony of tint and pain, saw Punjari behind the muddy waters of the stream, gleaming occasionally with crisp sparkles of sunlight, on either side of the road.

They were approaching with the speed of a railway express train the bridge, if not already partially collapsed, would cause a wreck of the first magnitude.

Suddenly, as Punjari closed his eyes, within a few seconds of eternity, there came a roar, a rush of steel and the sound of splintering wood as the locomotive leaped on to and broke through the bridge.

Punjari, his eyes tightly closed, his face twisted in agony, heard the crash, and the splintering of wood as a few loosened beams of the collapsing bridge shot into the air. The machine jerked, almost stopped, and then its terrific momentum suddenly brought it out of the water as its rear wheels caught the ground again. They went on.

Now, Punjari was opening his eyes and, perhaps it was only that it was to behold again only the drab landscape of an inland Indian valley instead of the alluring by described paradise of his faith which he had been taught to expect after death!

"It is a miracle!" he exclaimed, unheard by the demoniac driver at his side. "My Sahib is a yogi! That could have only been done by the magic of the wise men of old. To think that I should have lived to see this day!"

The devout little man had reached the seventh prayer on his encore list when to his astonishment the machine slowed down.

"The wheel has died! The engine has gone flat!" he gurgled breathlessly, as Meredith stretched his foot to the brake and his hand jerked to the emergency throttle.

The American laughed.

"Nothing Wrong With This Old Boat," He Answered

"No, Punjari. It's as peppy a machine as I ever drove in my life. Nothing wrong with this old boat," he answered, calmly, reckoning it to his pocket. He stepped out of the car, stretched his arms and kicked the kinks out of his legs. His face was red and smeared and inexplicable was this sudden Protean change that Punjari received the greatest fright of the entire trip.

"I could t that it was the seventh inning," was the uncanny remark of his employer, who now drew forth the faithful briar pipe and crammed its bowl with tobacco.

Punjari had often seen examples of insanity in all its frightful ravages among natives and even the white man who had fallen victim to the jungle fever, to the drear, nerve-shattering loneliness of years of separation from their own kind in the grim duty of the British East Indis Service. Queer, sad and ever terrifying that had been to the sensitive little native graduate of the University of Kumaw, with his gentle soul and strange mixture of Oriental and Occidental sympathies.

But he had never before observed the madness of one of the strange, big men from the land of "screaming eagles," those odd, laughing, lavishly generous, happy-go-lucky stalwarts who seemed to regard the entire world as a joke.

Like Meredith for many miles had grimped the wheel of the great automobile with the frenzy, the songfreid of a fiend, to escape pursuit, fleeing from the scene of a crime.

The sudden change of demeanor, the swift relaxation into the old carefree, and all through the agony, more terrible by far than any he had ever known, of the diabolic experience of Punjari.

"It is the seventh inning, I said. Get out of there and stretch and then get ready to cheer like an Apache! For I'm going to win in the last two innings!"

Punjari unsteadily descended from the car, backing away from the tall engineer, who now seemed to be strove visible to conceal.

"What is the matter, my boy?" and Meredith put a protecting hand on his nose on his face then brought his head erected a series of muscle setting up exercises to limber aching muscles. That hour or more of mad driving had been a tense task as he had ever undertaken.

"The seventh WHAT?" Sahib, served Meredith, still smiling. "And I am going to object to your bill unit and versatile mind a task which I assure you I would allow no other, but insofar to do."

There was the sound of sanity in his voice, at least. The pleasant compliments came seldom from the busy engineer and Punjari salaamed politely. His heart was beating more normally now.

Meredith was producing his wallet.

"Here is quite a sum of money, Punjari," he continued. "I entrust all this to you, to be used wisely and if you use every penny and account of it in accomplishing my purpose, it will be well spent. Could I show more faith to my servant?"

The little man's jaw dropped. Now, his salaam was doubly respectful.

"I am your servant and your humble adherent, even to the feeling of respectful friendship, if you will permit me."

"I not only permit you—I want you to feel that you are my friend in this, Punjari," and suddenly the smile vanished from the tall engineer's face. "Here is what I want you to do. I should have thought of it as soon as I left that trading town, but I was too much dazed to be withered by my hegira-thes

Mered th climbed slowly into the driving seat of the machine as he looked at his wrist wa started to follow him. The white man raised a hand

"No. You will not have to suffer the agonies of the post on this particular ride. If you thought I went fast before it is nothing to the speed laws I am going to break from now on, until I reach the o'd wooden bridge ten miles below Asadpur."

Punjari mured. Was he then to tramp the long, long miles to the city, alone.

"You are to return to that trading town. Before you get there arrange with some native to exchange your clothes for native stuff. Hide that turban—even if you are proud of it. Enter the town quietly—ride on some wagon if you can buy your way with a few small coins.

"Do not let either Sgt. MacPherson or Terence O'S ughnessy see you or recognize you at the worst. Your task, Punjari, old sport, is to kidnap a beautiful young lady named Rooks. She it was whom I came to rescue. Now, I have more reason than ever to rescue her and keep her rescued for the rest of her life, with myself as bodyguard."

Once again Punjari's high caste inhibitions arose

"It is the dancing girl you saved from the tiger?" he asked.

"Yes. And before many days pass, my boy, she will be your Memsahib, and I shall be on my honeymoon, telling her my message in the faith and mine, we are starting away across the seas to my own country beyond the seas where every man is a king and a queen for very life time." You have often said you would like to visit America. If you can manage to locate this young woman this afternoon, telling her my message in her own language, and can contrive to get ready to cheer like an Apache! For I'm going to win in the last two innings!"

Punjari unsteadily descended from the car, backing away from the tall engineer, who now seemed to be strove visible to conceal.

"What is the matter, my boy?" and Meredith put a protecting hand on his nose on his face then brought his head erected a series of muscle setting up exercises to limber aching muscles. That hour or more of mad driving had been a tense task as he had ever undertaken.

"The Melancholy Days"

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

IN childish books it used to sing, "The melancholy days have come—the saddest of the year!" But even when I was just able to read that I wondered why anyone should think that the time of skipping leaves, pumpkin pies, logs in the fireplace, air like dry wine, wild purple asters, sky of cold but burning blue, smell of bonfire smoke, hint of coming white snow, cranberry sauce as clear and firm as rubies, should come under the head of melancholy days. The whole year was melancholy then—the high heart time for me—was MELANCHOLY!

Some of the merriest folks alive confide that Autumn and her wild winds and her falling, flaming leaves depresses them. Why? Because, they say, "Summer and all gaiety with her seems to be ending. The sure trees will soon be bare. The wild flowers will be gone. The birds will go, except the warrie ones. The busy insect life in the grass and flowers is done. Frost is coming to turn the world to iron. Green, juicy leaves are rustling dry and dead." So say they.

A pretty girl in the Autumn wind just adds one more long to the nest of "the melancholy days!" for me!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Her blue eyes looked straight at him with a sudden mistrust. How knew he was not telling the truth.

"Yes, I passed you," she said. You were sitting under a tree—but it doesn't matter. You're a stranger around her, aren't you?"

"Yes. I'm a stranger."

"Then I'm glad you have told me at this time." A slight trouble was in her voice. "It isn't exactly pleasant for me to go up to that house alone. You see Mr. Penfield Paradine who lives there is an old man and he doesn't like my father or any of our family at all. He's sorta high tempered and cantankerous—he hasn't even spoken to any of us for 22 years or more. But if he's sick or dying—"

Eddie nodded wisely.

"If the old boy's in trouble I suppose that wipes out all the hard feelings," he remarked, with an attempt at philosophy.

But as he spoke he felt he was talking out of the side of his mouth in the New York manner. Vaguely he was conscious that he must be appearing crude and almost illiterate before this easy spoken young goddess

ASTROLOGY AND THEOLOGY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ASTRONOMICAL studies and conclusions will be found to have had much to do with our theological theories.

Think of the different view of the universe and its regulation taken by people now and those that lived before Copernicus and Gallileo.

When David wrote, "When I consider thy heavens, the sun, moon and stars that thou hast made, what is man that thou art mindful of him?" how much smaller a conception of both the universe and man he had from what we now have!

It must have a humbling effect upon every thinker to reflect upon the vastness of the universe and the smallness of the speck upon which we live. All of these discoveries may but increase our awe and reverence for Him who made the universe, but they alter our notion as to how He did this.

Victor Hugo, in his "Intellectual Autobiography," wrote:

"The locomotive travels 15 leagues an hour. The hurricane travels 60 leagues an hour. The cannon ball travels 700 leagues an hour. The locomotive drags, the hurricane limps, the cannon ball is a tortoise.

"Let us bestride a ray of light. This is to mount 4000 times faster than the cannon ball, 4,200,000 times swifter than the hurricane, and 17,000,000 times swifter than the locomotive. It makes, as you know, 70,000 leagues a second.

"Start. Light launches you from the Earth to the Sun in eight minutes, from the Sun to Oceanus in four hours, from Oceanus to Centaurus in three years and eight months, from Centaurus to the pole star in twenty-eight years, from the pole star to the Milky Way in 16,800 years, and from the Milky Way to the nebula of Canes Venatici in 5,000,000 years. You have not taken a step. The apparitions of the universe will continue to loom. Beyond the visible the invisible, beyond the invisible the unknown."

The earth we promptly bestride represents about three thousandths of one per cent of the sun's substance; one of the tiniest specks in the celestial universe.

If we imagine the Sun as a ball nine feet across, our globe in proportion would be a one-inch ball at a distance of 323 yards from the Sun. The Moon would be a speck, the size of a small pea, 30 inches from the Earth.

The nearest fixed star to the earth, even on this minute plan, would be over 40,000 miles away. And some of the stars we see at night would be a hundred million miles away in this scale that makes the Earth a one-inch ball and the Moon a small pea.

FINE FOR CHILDREN!

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate stomach and bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or habit-forming medicine, but a safe, pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.

WOULD YOU DO SOMETHING BIG?

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

"I WANT to do something big in this world, not just sleep and eat and die!" How many times have you heard people voice this sentiment? And a good one it is, too. Dissatisfaction, restlessness, are o.k. symptoms of progress. But now many people who voice this wish really do want to do something big, something which will benefit humanity and make life sweeter. How many feel that the something "big" is accomplished when they have seen their names in print on numerous occasions and who have had the thrill of overhearing whispers of "There goes Mr. So-and-So. He's the richest man in town," or "He wrote the book of the month."

Granted that in either case Mr. So-and-So may be doing much good in the world, giving work to hundreds of men or influencing people through stories, toward right living and high ideals—

BUT, the majority of us who are neither the richest citizen of a community nor the author of the book of the month, feel that there is nobling "big" which comes within our scope of activity, that we must ever remain in the great crowd of human beings who are born, eat, sleep talk a bit (maybe quite uselessly), and in time lie down and die.

We so often regret that there are things we CAN do which are very truly "big" things and are intensely gratifying in their results. They never gain us fame or glory, but they remain "big" things in life, nevertheless.

And one of these is to my mind, the making a homeless child a member of your family. By "homeless" I do not mean the children who are thrown out on the streets accidentally, and whom no one would have the heart to refuse shelter and food but the inmates of institutions, who have a roof over their heads, full stomachs but are still quite homeless. There is no disparagement of the excellent foundling homes in this statement.

The orphan asylums of today give every attention to the child's well-being, but they, first of all realized that a big building housing hundreds of children was not a home. They have proved this by more and more leaning toward putting the children in individual homes, either "paying" homes or free homes, the former families being given money for the care of the child, the latter taking the youngster free of charge with a view to final adoption.

Every child needs the love of one woman and one man, whom he may call "Mother" and "Father." He needs the individual attention and affection which instill in him the desire to live and be.

If you have an income of $3,000 yearly or over (which is I believe the stipulated amount necessary for adoption), and want to do your "something big" in life, take an afternoon and visit a home for children. If you can come away, unhaunted by the big, wistful eyes of children who demand so little to make them happy it will be a miracle.

You need not fear the out-of-date bugaboo of heredity. Children suffering any physical or mental disorders, whether these can be blamed on heredity or anything else, are sent to hospitals for care and medical attention. Only children with perfect physical records, and normal mental attributes are offered for your adoption.

And as for fearing that the child may show traits of laziness, thievery, criminal tendencies, etc., the records of successful adoptions go to prove that environment is the most important thing in a child's life, and that heredity is fast becoming but an obsolete word, formerly used to take the blame for behavior problems to which we did not know the answer.

And please—don't all of you ask for a yellow-haired baby girl with blue eyes! Ten to one, her hair will get dark as she grows up. She can't be a doll baby always, and there are so many bright, lovable youngsters waiting for you, who have outgrown their baby days.

So you want to do one of the very biggest things—see if you can't find it in your heart to take a little child into the circle of your firelight and your mother-love. To its loyalty and affection you will find the "big" thing for which you have yearned.

A WIFE'S MEDITATION

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE mystery of life, to a modern husband, is the discovery that when his wife begins taking off most of her clothes, she is dressing for a formal dinner party, and not suing for a swim.

* * *

Love is a gamble in which a woman crosses herself and prays to be the lucky winner, and a man confidently bets on himself as a lucky loser.

* * *

A man may be blinded by the brilliance of a woman's beauty, but he is usually just "struck dumb" by the brightness of her wit.

Alas, the girl who could offer a man "the real goods" in all those mirrors so often loses him for lack of good salesmanship!

To be popular in this world all you need to remember is that every woman loves to be looked at—and every man loves to be listened to.

In order to startle the world with her originality, nowadays, a woman has only to admit that she is madly and fearlessly in love with her own husband.

Widows and divorcees are the great optimists of the world. Somehow, if a woman has had a good, faithful husband, she thinks that all other men are like him. If she hasn't she fondly believes that all the others are "different."

* * *

One of the funniest things in the world, to a married man, is to hear a bunch of bridegroom and a bachelor lecherously telling each other "how to tame a woman."

* * *

Most marriages aren't broken off; they just stretch and stretch and stretch—until "the ties that bind" give way.

* * *

Removing all the mystery from love or a woman has the same effect as removing his hat from a bald-headed man.

SURPRISE FOR STOCKHOLDERS OF GEN. MOTORS

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, on his return from Europe today, said stockholders are to receive "something of a pleasant surprise" at the directors meeting November 2. He refused to comment further on what action the directors would take, but Wall Street expects a melon in the form of a stock dividend.

Mr. Sloan, who passed five weeks abroad in a business survey, said General Motors would establish a record year and earnings for 1928 would approximate $16 a common share.

The motor industry in Europe, he said, is advancing at a rapid pace, with standardization gaining practically dominating the market. But, he added, it is becoming more and more evident that in order to retain this dominance in the foreign market the American manufacturer sooner or later must locate and assemble his products abroad.

In England and the continent alone, he said, the General Motors export volume this year will exceed 100,000 units, representing an even greater value to this territory in 1929.

HUB LAUDED AT MAYONNAISE MEN'S FETE

Witches wiggled and black cats blinked, and all the other Hallowteen touches added their gaiety to the third annual dinner of the Mayonnaise Products Manufacturers' Association of America, held at the Copley-Plaza. The convention of the association continues today, with an address by Charles H. Stevenson of New York, to be followed by a conference for members only.

Boston was praised for its hospitality by speakers at the dinner. Toastmaster Patrick Doyle who was also master of ceremonies, said the organization appreciated the spirit with which the city had received its members.

"When we were meeting in Chicago a year ago, said the toastmaster, "three Bostonians came to get our convention for their city told us if we came here we would have the best time we ever had. They and their city have fulfilled this promise."

The three Hub men were pointed out as John E. Cain of the Cain Mayonnaise Co., and Frank F. and James A. Alexander, of the Alexander Mayonnaise Co. The three were heartily applauded by the convention members.

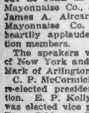
The speakers were Ernest Finch of New York and Rev. John Hichens Mark of Allerton.

C. P. McCormick of Baltimore was re-elected president of the association. E. F. Kelly of Columbus, O., was elected vice president, and Miss Vana Schriver of Philadelphia was elected secretary-treasurer. Richard Hellman of New York was named chairman of the board of directors and B. S. Pearsall of Elgin, Ill., was elected a director.

SAYS BEAUTIES HAVE BIG FEET

The most beautiful girls in America have big feet!

And that means Boston's prettiest are included in the characterization.



Wald Studio
Philip Melhado

The man who makes this startling declaration is Philip Melhado, in charge of the announcement division of the 7th Annual Official Boston Shoe Show to be held at the Hotel Statler on January 3 and 4.

He says that each year when he seeks new faces for the revue of the mannequins clad in the latest styles and novelties of the shoe industry, his troubles start. Finely cut profile is apparently among them winners of various beauty contests, but when it's a really event calling for beauty and figure alone, would shibe.

But when the foot measurements are taken, and the limit in size 4-B is reached, the girls are told that they have been far too large for the requirements.

GRID COACH IS K. OF C. HEAD

Joe McKenney, football coach of Boston College, was installed as chancellor of Allston Council, Knights of Columbus, at a largely attended meeting in Odd Fellows Hall, Union sq., Allston. A large delegation from Boston College was present.

District Deputy Edward Hanan and suite of Mattapan installed the officers, who were: Grand Knight, William F. Duncan; deputy grand knight, Edward O'Hara; chancellor, Joseph McKenney; financial secretary, Fred Carr; recording secretary, James H. O'Rourke; warden, Michael Purcell; chaplain, Rev. N. J. Murphy; treasurer, Michael Donovan; advocate, Edward J. Barrett; inside guard, Edward Kenney; outside guard, John Durley.

Among the guests present were, Rev. T. C. Gleason, Rev. George McColgan, John H. Swift, state deputy; Louis K. Watson, P. S. D.; Joseph M. Kirby, state secretary; Francis A. McLaughlin, P. D. D.; Thomas Vasey, D. D., of Watertown; Joseph A. Parker, D. D., of Roxbury, and Rev. George Muldoon, grand knight of Brighton Council.

An entertainment under the direction of J. H. McIsaac followed, and a banquet was served under the direction of William F. McClellan.

HARVARD AND YALE TO DEBATE AL TOMORROW

Edward M. Rowe of Indianapolis, Ind., captain of Harvard debate team, announced the selection of the four Harvard debaters who have been selected to represent Harvard in tomorrow's debate against Yale. The four selected are: Edward Winer, '29, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; J. M. Swigert, '30, of Des Moines, Ia.; Peter J. Wyckoff, '29, of Schenectady, N. Y., and V. K. Sweeny, '29, a student from China. Three of the four will debate against Yale, and the fourth man will serve as alternate. It has not yet been decided which three will be the speakers.

The debate will be held in Symphony Hall, Boston, and the Harvard team will defend the proposition, "Resolved, that Al Smith should be elected President of the United States."

The Day In and Day Out Job of the Salvation Army

SALVATION ARMY FEEDS NEEDY

We are indebted to Mr. Sidney S. Conrad for a copy of an attractive and most interesting booklet, "Around Boston With the Salvation Army," which describes what the Army has accomplished in this city in the past year.

The organization in Greater Boston is incorporated "for the charitable and religious purposes of benefiting the poor and needy by relieving their bodies from disease and suffering and by ministering to their needs and necessities, by assisting them to establish themselves in life, by bringing their minds and hearts under the influence of education and of the Christian religion, and by otherwise promoting their mental, moral and physical welfare."

In what degree these noble purposes are achieved it is manifestly quite impossible to relate by means of figures or printed word; but the facts set forth in this unusual booklet are astonishing, to say the least. We learn, for example, that in the Staniford Street Settlement and Day Nursery 13,139 children were cared for and 19,708 meals were served. And we read of "Wonderland," the fresh air camp on the shores of Lake Massapoag, in Sharon, where 3457 children were taken last Summer from the heat and [illegible]lor of the city to be entertained from ten days to two weeks. They came to the table for 148,000 meals and they averaged a gain of at least a pound a week, two tons of bone and muscle!

The men's hotels provided 77,493 lodgings—at a tithe of the price charged for equivalent service by commercial houses; there were 1680 Thanksgiving and 13,979 Christmas dinners, 67 prisoners were paroled in Salvation Army care and 601 prisoners visited and counselled; 4052 persons were given shoes and clothing, the Roxbury Free Hospital cared for 2075 resident and 8895 out-patients, and 169 unfortunate girls were sheltered in the Evangeline Booth Home and Maternity Hospital, at 202 West Newton Street.

To finance the operation in the coming year of the 24 institutions and departments by which the Army thus serves humanity in the Greater Boston Area, the organization MUST raise $155,950, a nominal sum when measured by what the Salvation Army has done and is doing for Greater Boston.

But one of the things about which no one will argue is the Salvation Army. Like the Red Cross, it has won universal allegiance. The campaign for funds will continue until November 10th.

Defied Death to Vote

Caesar Rodney's Example; If You Are Qualified, Go to the Polls Next Tuesday

Dover, Delaware, recently celebrated the two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Caesar Rodney, the man who made the adoption of the Declaration of Independence unanimous. Few histories record the incident of Rodney's ride, yet it was as dramatic as that of Revere or Sheridan, and perhaps as important.

On July 1, when the Declaration was drafted, the leaders of Congress were eager to obtain a unanimous vote of the thirteen colonies for the document. Delaware was divided, with one member for independence, another against it, and Caesar Rodney, close to death in Dover, a victim of cancer of the face in so malignant a form that he was compelled to wear a veil. A messenger was sent to him pleading with him to risk death to reach Philadelphia and cast a vote for his country. He rose from bed, defying doctors, and rode eighty miles cross-country in time to cast his ballot and pledge Delaware to independence.

On Tuesday, November 6, the United States that grew from the declaration that Rodney rode to vote for will elect its thirty-first President. It is mathematically possible for a single vote to decide this national election. So if you are qualified, as Rodney was, to vote, do not neglect your patriotic privilege and duty.

One Russian Woman

She Thinks Well of Sovietism

Our respectability has a horror of Sovietism, and feels sorry for Russia. Russian peasants, however, now owning land taken from nobles that did no work on it, and with the vote given to men and women, think well of their government.

For instance, Catherine Sorrokina is a voter now. When she was fourteen, 107 years ago—she is now 121—this peasant woman, born a serf, was sold in exchange for a gun.

Now she is a free voter in the Communist Republic, and considers that an improvement. She well may.

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—Workers occupying humble posts in New York do not fare so badly. The Cinderella theme is especially pronounced among those who minister to the personal wants of wealthy employers—that is the servant class. During the past year more than 100 have been substantially remembered in wills.

A hotel barber was recently asked by a customer he had shaved for years to meet him after he had finished work for the day. He was driven to a suburb where a completely furnished seven-room house was turned over to him as a gift.

Wall Street financial houses are especially thoughtful in caring for employes passing the age of usefulness. Many such houses pension off servitors on full salaries. Valets to millionaires and maids to their wives frequently achieve old age independence.

There is a quality to personal service that cements a bond between employer and servant. They become members of the family and when no longer able to serve live on in the household in comfort. Scores of ancient coachmen are retained in this fashion.

In a midtown skyscraper there was an alert elevator operator who had a perpetual smile daily for lurrying tenants. He became known as "Smiling Bob." It was learned that due to a bronchial affliction he was trying to find employment in the open air.

Today he owns many broad acres in Missouri, completely paid for and a present from those he had shown courtesy. A pleasant mannered manicure girl in a hotel patronized by theatrical people was permanently disabled in a street accident.

Her customers circulated a petition and raised $2200 which was used to purchase a tea room and her income is triple that of her manicure post. These are a few of the innumerable instances to show New York generously aids those who serve them well.

SEASONED transatlantic voyagers rarely reserve their cabins save during the rush season. They merely purchase a first-class ticket and depend on the purser to allot them space when the ship pulls out in this way they are frequently assigned to de luxe quarters that would cost them handsomely if especially reserved.

THE versatility of J. P. McEvoy seems endless. He came out of the West to the big town with such fame as is attached to the unknown writers of holiday greeting cards. He took up playwriting and sponsored three fairly successful hits, launched a newspaper feature that was widely circulated, and this summer authored a best-selling book. Mr. McEvoy wears a black fuzzy hat, turned down all the way around, a checkered cab driver's overcoat, a closely cropped mustache, features a brutish cigar at an Uncle Joe Cannon angle, and is quite a boy.

THESE rich young men who call themselves Mr. Soandso the Second are annoying. They give the impression of trying to share the glory of Mr. Soandso, the First, without having his qualifications. And Bob Brinkerhoff, who is peeking over my shoulder and has already used up four of my cigarettes, thinks it is none of my business.

IT was a pleasing and un-actor like gesture Will Rogers made in refusing to be starred with the daughter of his friend, Fred Stone. Miss Dorothy Stone gets the top billing with Rogers merely featured, while as a matter of fact he runs away with the show. Fred Stone is in a plaster-cast from his hips down as the result of an airship crash. Almost every bone in his body was broken, yet he says every night from 8 to 11 his dancing toes begin to wiggle. Habit is strong.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

LOIS has fallen in love, and she wants to know how she can be sure that the young man is her "perfect mate."

You can't be sure, Lois. For there's no such thing as a perfect mate. There's no mysterious alchemy which binds one soul to another to the exclusion of all other souls. The woods are full of nice men you might marry and be happy with—provided you can be happy with anyone.

MARITAL HAPPINESS DOES NOT DEPEND ON PICKING THE ONE DIVINELY APPOINTED AFFINITY. IT DEPENDS ON MAKING UP YOUR MIND THAT YOU WILL GET ALONG WITH SOMEONE ELSE—AND THEN GETTING ALONG.

This, of course, won't be a popular theory. It won't be a popular theory because it implies a lot of hard work and self-restraint. It's much jollier to think that God has prepared a partner peculiarly suited to our needs, a partner whose love will smooth every pebble from our path than it is to believe that we've got to do our own smoothing. But sooner or later we must face the grim fact that, search as we will, there are no affinities. There are simply a number of ordinary human beings whose personalities are more or less adapted to ours. And if we don't happen to get Bessie or Bill we can probably be just as happy with Alice or Al, provided, as I said before, that we can be happy with anyone.

But there's the rub. Some of us have learned how to achieve happiness and some of us haven't. Some of us have learned how to get along with other people and with ourselves—and some of us haven't. Then we marry—expecting the miracle to set in, thinking that our union with this other human is going to iron out all the kinks and give us that peace, poise and panch which we have always desired, but never attained. And if the miracle doesn't come off we blame marriage and decide that we haven't picked the right mate.

As a matter of fact, our choice of a mate has comparatively little to do with it. The fault lies with us—ourselves. The very qualities which made us futile and fretty before marriage are making us futile and fretty after marriage. And they'll keep right on making us futile and fretty, regardless of our mates, until we remedy them.

We expect too much of marriage and of the people we marry. Marriage isn't a mysterious experience, operating under an occult schedule. Marriage is just part or life and it is governed by the same laws which govern every other department of life. And the people we marry are just—people.

But for all that marriage is a great little game. And you'll know if you've ever come home lonely and tired of a night to an empty room. For even if your partner can't read your mind or revamp your soul, he can hold your hand down the winding trail of the years. And that, I'm thinking, is about as rare a comfort as any mortal could desire.

National Policies of the Hearst Papers

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve pea among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election o United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the popu lation of each State, but no State to have less than two Sena tors. A reapportionment of Congressional representation im mediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Con gress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of popu lation for each representative in each case to be that of the ex isting Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

The "Glorious" Past

by HERBERT KAUFMAN

Historically speaking, distance lends inaccuracy as well as enchantment to the view. The acid of investigation protests that the golden glamour of the past was very thinly plated. The Renaissance produced its Michelangelo, Cellini and da Vinci—but not a plumber or a food inspector.

The greatest medieval kings lived at the mercy of any tramp disease with a taste for royal blood. The prettiest mouth in Europe was no better than its unkempt teeth.

Elegance was a veneer scantily surfacing universal grossness. A self-respecting ditch digger would resent the table manners and personal habits of any medieval court fop.

The equivalent facilities in a modern laborer's home once entailed the employment of a domestic army. Where we have telephones, gas ranges, dumb waiters, mail boxes, refrigerators and furnaces, nobles were dependent upon the substitute service of endless scullions, lackeys and pages.

All the wealth of Queen Anne's treasuries couldn't bribe the March chill and August heat out of Windsor.

Elizabeth had no protection from the gutter sights and stenches as she bounced over the ruts of London in a gilded but springless chariot.

The purchasing power of a living worker's dime is, in a hundred ways, greater than a dead monarch's ducats. Inherent rights and general opportunities in this year of Our Lord, 1928, outweigh yesterday's whole caboodle of regal privileges.

Progress is a community estate and its every benefice heals and enlightens for all—as witness: antiseptic surgery and democracy, faucets and justice, impartial public schools and sewers, anesthesia and refrigeration, vaccines and newspapers, fly screens and railroads, pure water and dentistry, wireless and soap—for the half of which the Louis's and Charles's and Ferdinands would severally have traded half their domains.

Most everybody now is better off than anybody then. Society is swiftly and symmetrically advancing the common interest.

If the processes of progress occasionally inflict a harsh experience—what of it? We can't build without some economic chips and sawdust. Measure how far the many have come as well as how far we must still go, and be patient.

Year by year we know more, and in the knowledge grow more understanding. And so year by year inequalities and the human rubbish heap keep diminishing.

Vim Vigor Victory
When he chipped away at an arrow-head
The rest of the tribe guffawed and said:
"It can't be done."
When he made his plans for the two-wheel cart
The neighbors proved that it wouldn't start.
But the thing did run.
When he rigged his dugout with a sail
The wise ones knew that the schema would fail.
But he wasn't drowned.
When he claimed that the earth was not a plane
But a globe—they roared. "Why, the boob's insane."
But he proved it round.
